MURDERER RIDES
2,000 MILES WITH BODY OF VICTIMMYSTERY OF MISSING MICH-IGAN TRUCKING CONTRACT-OR SOLVED THURSDAY

SCRANTON, Calif., Feb. 7.—(P)—A murder suspect's 2,000 mile motor car ride with the body of his alleged victim was disclosed at a lonely police outpost on the California-Nevada border today and solved the mysterious disappearance of a Kalamazoo, Mich. trucking contractor and his employee.

Clarence Frechette, 25, the driver of the machine, was reported by Capt. Joseph Blake of the California state highway patrol to have confessed he shot Robert Brown, 28, his employer, at Howell, Mich., January 29, and carried the body in the trunk of the machine for nine days.

With the fleeing suspect, when he was taken into custody near Truckee, Calif., were three hitchhikers, a man, a woman, and a little boy.

Captain Blake quoted Frechette as saying Brown was killed after the latter had told of intimate relations with Frechette's "girl friend."

Brown's purported admission was made nine days ago, Blake quoted Frechette as saying, while the pair were driving from Kalamazoo to Fortine, Mich.

"I knocked him down," the asserted confession read. "He crawled to the car and reached in a pocket and grabbed that gun. He pointed it at me and I grabbed his hand."

"I didn't know whether it was his finger or mine, but the gun fired twice."

"I put him in the trunk and I didn't know whether he was dead or alive. I knew it was caught. I'd spend the rest of my life in prison."

Blake said Frechette, a former convict once known as "the flying bullet," spent the night in Port Kalamazoo, where he was held in a cell. He was then taken to a motion picture show. Then began the strange flight.

It was intended to end in Chicago, the purported confession said. But it ended abruptly at midnight because Sheriff Charles W. Struble of Kalamazoo, had a hunch Brown had been killed.

Cotton Belt
Rail Officials
Here Thursday

A party of Cotton Belt railway officials passed through Corsicana about 9 o'clock Thursday morning en route from Waco to Texarkana on a regular tour of inspection.

The party was headed by Daniel Upthegrove, president of the railway company, and included L. E. Hazlewood, superintendent, N. S. Rosemond, assistant superintendent, V. C. Nall, division engineer, and others.

A general improvement in business handled by the railroad was reported by Mr. Upthegrove, and he showed considerable interest in building and oil activities in this section. Reports received by the president on Corsicana "gateways" showed that about 250 cars per day were being transferred between the Southern Pacific and the Cotton Belt in the local yards.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—(P)—The senate appropriations committee today further amended the administration $4,880,000,000 work-relief bill by requiring labor on all public projects to be paid "not less than the prevailing wage" of private industry in the locality.

The amendment, offered by Senator McCarran (D-Nev) and approved 12 to 8, was in direct conflict with the provision of the bill authorizing the President to acquire property by purchase or the power of eminent domain and to "improve, develop, grant, sell, lease (with or without the privilege of purchase) or otherwise dispose of any such property or interest therein."

Chairman Glass (D-Va.) explained this provision, restored at the request of Senator Norbeck (R-SD), was put back to permit the purchase or condemnation of cer-

GRANITE, Okla., Feb. 7.—(P)—Charges that girls visited prisoners at Granite reformatory and "sat on the boys' laps" and that prison-made wine was served at a banquet recently in honor of the warden were revealed today by the board of affairs at a public hearing.

The charges were denied by the more than a score of women and girls of Granite who had asked the board to hold today's hearing. L. M. Nichols, affairs board president, refused to reveal the names of those who had signed the affidavits.

"The charges are that girls who took magazines to the boys in prison stayed to sit on their laps for a while," Nichols told the women. "Other affidavits say that ham from the prison was served at a banquet citizens gave in honor of the warden, Mrs. George Waters, and that wine, made at the prison, also was served."

Several of the girls rose to deny blushing, that they had done any lap sitting at the prison, and the women branded the banquet charges as false.

ALLEGED SCANDAL
TEXAS RACE TRACKS
BEING INVESTIGATEDCHARGES INVOLVE PUR-PORTED FIXING OF RACES
THROUGH DOPING

AUSTIN, Feb. 7.—(P)—Governor James V. Allred revealed today he had ordered a sweeping investigation into operations at Texas race tracks of a ring, probably national in scope, purportedly "fixing" races through use of dope and narcotics.

The inquiry, Governor Allred said, has been quietly under way for a few days. He expressed the belief that certain former state employees might be involved.

The investigation was started after eight trainers at Alamo Downs, San Antonio race course, were suspended for alleged improper practices.

The governor said that as far as he knew only one Texas track was involved at the present time but he asserted the inquiry would be pursued into operations at all tracks.

"There is no doubt from the investigation made so far that doping of horses is being done and that the gamblers are reaping a big profit from it," the Governor said. "And I have the evidence to prove it."

Test Report Changed.
"Incidentally the investigation will disclose some skulduggery in the changing of reports on chemical tests made on the horses. The reports on the tests in some cases were changed from 'positive' to 'negative'."

The investigation is being handled by the Texas Rangers under Allred's personal supervision.

Governor Allred said he would send a special message to the legislature today recommending repeal of the law legalizing pari-mutuel wagering on horse races. A bill to repeal the law was introduced last night by the house criminal jurisprudence committee.

Dallas Mother
And Child Burn
Death in Home

DALLAS, Feb. 7.—(P)—A mother and her three-year-old son who received fatal burns when trapped in their blazing home here yesterday will be buried side by side tomorrow.

Mrs. Tom Hicks made a heroic effort to save her child, David Lee Hicks. She grabbed the child and ran to the lawn in front of the home, where she fainted. Both were unconscious when neighbors found them.

They died within six hours, the child first. The father, serving on a jury, rushed to the hospital but when informed his wife was rallying, departed for another hospital where he submitted to a blood transfusion for a patient.

His wife died while he was gone.

M'CARTER AND M'GLOTHLIN EXPECT HAVE OPERATIONS
UNDER WAY SUNDAY

Slush pits have been constructed, materials are on the ground and rigging is in progress for the beginning of the McCarter and McGlothlin test, scheduled for Sunday, R. A. McCarter, one of the operators, stated Thursday afternoon. If weather conditions permit, surface pipe will be set Monday or Tuesday.

This new test is scheduled to be drilled 4,000 feet unless further information is obtained at a higher level.

The new well is located nine miles south of Kerens on the Elkhart Powers survey, about three miles west of Rural Shade and one mile from the Sym Oil company-Ray No. 1 test drilled last year.

R. A. McCarter and Wm. C. McGlothlin, well-known local oil operators, are drilling this test. Crew on the Woodbine test by Meers & al near Currie on the Rushing farm were reported to have gone back in the hole Wednesday night for washing down and then another crew was to be taken. Some trouble was encountered coming out of the hole Tuesday but the round trip was finally completed and operations were reported back on bottom levels last night.

Rigging up is still in progress Thursday on the Roy Albritton test at shallow tests southwest of Corsicana, with actual drilling (Continued on Page Eleven)

LARGE PART STATE

SUSTAIN GROWTH WINTER
CROPS IN STATE

By The Associated Press
Moisture needed to sustain the growth of winter crops was provided to some extent by slow rainfall last night.

Some points reported only drizzling rain and a few were limited to misty precipitation but much of the state had beneficial quantities of rain.

Fort Worth had .69 of an inch and it still was drizzling there. Dallas had .60, with continued showers.

A slow rain was augmenting the drizzle at Corsicana. It was drizzling at Palestine, Longview and a drizzle and tyler reported a slow downpour which started before daylight.

Rainfall at Vernon totaled .77 of an inch. Paris had light rains yesterday and cloudy overcast the sky today in that section.

San Angelo had .78 of an inch and it still was misting, with prospects of more moisture. Rain extended in all directions from San Angelo.

At Abilene the precipitation amounted to 1.15 inches. Skies were overcast and occasional showers added more today.

Lubbock was overcast but had received only mist.

Rain failed to materialize in the Amarillo section, where the sun was shining brightly this morning. However, the weatherman forecast rain for this afternoon at Amarillo.

Houston had .50 of an inch during the last 24 hours. Temperatures ranged high over 70, with no point reporting a minimum below freezing. Amarillo had a low of 33 degrees.

NEW DEAL GOSSIP GROWS AS RESULT AAA SHAKEUP; WHAT FUTURE HOLDS PROBLEMATICAL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—(P)—New Deal gossip which teems in Washington during cocktail hours today fashioned out of the resignation of five "left wing" agricultural officials a mass of speculation as to where the lightning may strike next. More resignations from the AAA were believed to be impending.

"Is President Roosevelt going to the right?" was the question asked in circles which earlier in his administration interpreted the dropping out of such conservatives as Lewis W. Douglas, Dean Acheson and O. M. W. Sprague, as signaling a "left" tendency.

How the "dead cats" which put retirement Hugh S. Johnson in retirement will react on Secretary Ickes, for whom some congressmen have been gunning, and Donald R. Richberg, whom labor union leaders call a "traitor" was another question often put—and as often unanswered.

President Roosevelt had nothing to say about any reports that the AAA shake-up and his letters (Continued on Page Eleven)

HAUPTMANN DEFENSE

IN FLEMINGTON TRIAL

By WILLIAM A. KINNEY
(Copyright, 1935, By Associated Press.)
FLEMINGTON, N. J., Feb. 7.—(P)—The defense of Bruno Richard Hauptmann brought a boy with plane into court today in an effort to refute the ladder evidence by which the state seeks to connect Hauptmann with the kidnapping and murder of Baby Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

The youth used a plane with pencils in a demonstration to show that nicks in a plane blade would change the relationships according to the angle the plane was held in use. A similar demonstration, designed to show that the marks of Hauptmann's plane were on the kidnap ladder, was used for the state by a government wood expert.

The defense demonstration followed its pursuit of a hint that part of the ladder evidence was "framed," with Dr. E. M. Hudson, amateur fingerprint expert of New York, testifying that three important, incriminating nail holes in the ladder were in existence when he examined it.

The defense also sought to recall Hildegard Olga Alexander, the Bronx dress model who testified for the state that she saw Hauptmann shadowing Dr. John F. (Jafie) Condon in the Bronx during the period of the Lindbergh ransom negotiations. Dr. Condon was the intermediary for Charles A. Lindbergh.

Uhlir Little Help to Defense
She was not in court. The state had been ordered to call her back, and the attorney general promised to discuss the matter with the defense later.

Henry Uhlir, close friend of the late Isador Fisch, gave the defense little help in its effort to show that Fisch, not Hauptmann, got the $50,000 ransom money.

Tentative Price
Is Set For Baby
Treasury Bonds

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—(P)—A tentative price range of $75 to $78 for a 10-year bond maturing at $100 has been set by the treasury for its first issue of "baby bonds" on March 1.

In making the announcement, Undersecretary C. G. Smith said that a price of $75 would yield 2.90 per cent interest on a ten-year maturity while the higher price would net a return of 2-1/2 per cent.

Collidge held the view the bonds would not be eligible as collateral at commercial banks as they did not enjoy the transfer privilege. He said, however, that they would be readily negotiable at commercial banks, as well as federal reserve banks and all local agencies.

GOVERNMENT WILL CONTINUE GIVING
CHECKS TO FARMERSBENEFIT PAYMENTS FOR RE-DUCTIONS FOR FIVE COM-MODITIES HALF BILLION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—(P)—Government economists said today this country's farmers are assured of government checks for $4,223,000,000 this year. They estimated the sum may pass half a billion dollars.

Under the AAA program which started May 12, 1933, more than 10 million checks for $29,614,037 had been passed out by this large part of the government.

Secretary Wallace estimated 1935 benefit payments for reductions on five of the basic commodities as follows:

Wheat $102,000,000
Corn-hog—$165,000,000
Cotton $94,230,000
Sugar $47,000,000
Peanuts $4,000,000

Operation of the AAA has greatly swelled the personnel of the department of agriculture. Before Secretary Wallace took office March, 1932, there were 27,777 employees. Now the department lists 39,710, an increase of 12,000.

Cost of the AAA from its inception until the start of this year was $733,235,525. Administrator Chester C. Davis said. But of this amount only $36,184,780 was for administration expenses. The bulk was divided in rental and benefit payments to producers and purchases of surpluses.

ING TO WASHINGTON

DALLAS, Feb. 7.—(P)—Fifteen Texas oil operators, business men and bankers planned to embark by plane for Washington today to plead for federal co-operation with the state forces in negotiating a deal for the oil fields.

Appointed at a mass meeting here yesterday, the committee plans to appear before the house committee on foreign and interstate commerce with a resolution adopted calling for united efforts of state and federal governments in the control of illegal oil operations.

A strong plea for passage of the Connally bill for interstate control of excess oil will be made by the delegation. The resolution will inform house committee members that excess oil production could be handled at $200,000 annually through control of interstate shipments, "not much more than the value of 'hot' oil produced in one day during the worst days of overproduction in the East Texas field."

"Re-establishment of the federal tender board, given major credit for reducing 'hot' oil to a minimum in the past, and enactment of the Connally bill would not interfere with the state compact plan, and interstate control is essential to the pact plan," the resolution read.

LEGALIZED BETTING ON HORSE RACES IN TEXAS BE REPEALED
IN BILL FAVORABLY REPORTED

AUSTIN, Feb. 7.—(P)—Legalized betting on horse races in Texas, less than two years old, would be repealed under a bill reported favorably last night by the house criminal jurisprudence committee.

A well organized and militant majority blocked all efforts to delay a vote on the bill and it was sent to the floor by an overwhelming vote of 15 to 6. It marked the first victory in the drive that was started immediately after passage of the wagering law by the last legislature.

A crowd of more than 200 persons, proponents and opponents of repeal from all parts of the state sat through a surcharged hearing as the repealists rode rough shod over a dogged minority.

Advocates of repeal asserted race track wagering had proved the most demoralizing influences in the state's history, that it was endangering legitimate business, increasing lawlessness, causing persons to use their money to gamble instead of paying their obligations and was causing un-bold misery and suffering.

NARCOTICS AGENT SLAIN AT POST BY SHERIFF W. F. CATOGARZA COUNTY OFFICER SAYS SELF DEFENSE; AGENT ON INVESTIGATION TRIP

POST, Feb. 7.—(P)—Spencer Stafford, a federal narcotic agent of Fort Worth, was shot and killed here this morning by Sheriff W. F. Cato of Garza county.

Sheriff Cato said he had fired in self-defense. County Attorney H. G. Smith said.

The shooting occurred about 11:30 o'clock in front of Dr. L. W. Kitchen's Veterinary Hospital two blocks south of Main street.

Stafford and V. C. McCullough of Dallas, agents of the narcotics division of the treasury department, were in Post as investigators.

What precipitated the shooting was not determined immediately. Asked for a statement this afternoon, Sheriff Cato said:

"You'll have to see my attorney."

The sheriff had been informed that two men wearing guns were in Post. He deputized Tom Pearson, a farmer, and the two went to the veterinary hospital in Cato's automobile, the radiator front of which bore a sheriff's emblem.

Stafford, who evidently died instantly, suffered five wounds.

No Others Wounded
Whether Stafford had drawn his gun was not determined immediately. An unidentified woman was reported to have been accompanied by the two narcotics agents. Whether she was a figure in a large-scale drug traffic investigation, that was under way under cover in this region was not determined.

After arriving at the veterinary hospital with his civilian deputy, Sheriff Cato went to the agents' automobile, parked nearby, supposedly search it.

An inquest will be conducted this afternoon.

Stafford was shot through the heart, twice in the chest, and once in the abdomen. His right hand and forearm were wounded, likewise one of the pelvis. He bled profusely from the chest. It hit glancingly and followed the ribs, and emerg-

DEFENSE DIGS UP MORE WITNESSES TO POINT TO DEAD MAN ADDITIONAL ALIBI WIT- NESSES ALSO PARADED TO WITNESS CHAIR

By WILLIAM A. KINNEY
(Copyright, 1935, By Associated Press.)

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Feb. 5.—(P)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann's defense today produced a witness who testified he saw the late Isidor Fisch jump over a wall at St. Raymond's cemetery, the Bronx, on the night of the $50,000 Lindbergh ransom was paid there.

The testimony was given by Benjamin Heier, 24, who identified himself as a writer now employed as a restaurant cashier.

He said he was in a parked car with a young lady who later married another man and who is now dead, and saw Fisch leap to the sidewalk from the cemetery wall on the night of April 2, 1932.

It was on that date that Dr. John F. (Jafse) Condon testified he paid the ransom to Hauptmann while Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh waited in a parked car.

Hauptmann, accused of kidnapping and murdering Colonel Lindbergh's infant son, claimed Fisch gave him the block of ransom money which was found in his garage, and Hauptmann's attorneys today openly accused Fisch of being the man who collected the ransom.

Heier said he identified Fisch from pictures in the newspapers, shown a picture of Fisch, he said: "There is a strong resemblance."

He said the man he saw took several steps toward his car and his face was well lighted by the car's headlights.

Heier was asked to answer "By" when Edward J. Reilly, chief defense counsel, asked if the young lady he was with ever had referred to the incident at the cemetery in a letter. The state, however, kept the letter from evidence.

Attorney General Wilentz cross-examined Heier, immediately brought out that he had once been convicted; also that his name had been used in connection with the operation of a "hot" car. Heier said he was well-known as a "hot."

Close to contempt. Heier skirted close to contempt of court when he refused to give the name of the girl he was with that night he said he saw Fisch. "I refuse to answer," he declared when Wilentz asked him the name of the parents, and after the court had directed than an answer be given.

Finally he said the girl's name was Schwartz and that her parents were named Schwartz and that they lived on Webster avenue in the Bronx. He said he couldn't remember the number. Wilentz reminded him that direct examination he had said he knew the number.

"I wouldn't tell if I did remember," Heier said.

Wilentz brought out that Heier had not told any authorities about his experience, and that he did not recall the incident until last Saturday.

The court ruled out an effort by the defense to show that Fisch visited a woman late in 1933 at Riverside, Long Island, bearing certain packages.

The court also suppressed, temporarily at least, a defense subpoena which would have required Col. H. Norman Schwartzkopf to produce the releases he gave to newspapers during the Lindbergh kidnapping investigation, and ruled out the testimony of a theatre patron with which the defense intended to attack the memory of a state witness who said Hauptmann spent a ransom bill on November 26, 1933.

The defense hinted, through questions to a department of justice agent, John S. Seykora, that it might attack the conditional condition of Dr. John F. (Jafse) Condon, Lindbergh immediately, who testified he paid Hauptmann the ransom money in a Bronx graveyard on the night of April 2, 1932.

Through Philip Moses, a Bronx taxi driver, the defense sought to show the presence of four mysterious men near the graveyard on the night of the payment.

Among many other witnesses who took the stand before the noon recess was Mrs. Maria Mueller, Mrs. Hauptmann's niece, who said Hauptmann was at his own birthday party on the night of November 16, 1932, when he was alleged to have sent a ransom bill in a theatre. The date was prior to the day on which Hauptmann claimed Fisch gave him part of the ransom money in an unopened shoe box.

Edward J. Reilly, defense chief counsel, asked the agent Seykora if he knew of any report in existence which showed that Dr. Condon, had been examined by alienists.

"I have never heard of any such report," the agent said. Attorney General David T. Wilentz denied that there was any such fact.

Not eccentric. "Did your investigation disclose that in the Bronx he was looked upon as eccentric?" Reilly asked.

"I wouldn't say so, generally," said Seykora. "As a general term No. 1 am not qualified to say whether he is looked upon as being eccentric or not."

"Did your investigation disclose the fact that he sometimes dressed as a woman and masqueraded around the neighborhood?"

"No, sir, it disclosed no such fact."

"Did anybody in official life, in Washington from the President, not this present president, but the president then, stay your hand toward Dr. Condon?"

"Never in the slightest way that I know of, no, sir."

In cross-examination Wilentz asked Seykora:

Leader in Bronx. "Is it not a fact that Dr. Condon was known throughout the Bronx as a leader of Boy Scout, Girl Scout and other civic movements and as a patriotic citizen?"

"Yes, Sir."

With a view to showing that Fisch was the collector of the ransom the defense put on the stand Mrs. Martha Hoff, who testified that she was visited on November 1933, by Fisch and a farmer named Budeure who lived at Lebanon, N. J., 20 miles from the Lindbergh estate.

The visit, she said, was at her home at Bayville, N. J.

Reilly, fighting to get into the record testimony that Fisch carried bundles at the time, declared hotly:

"During the day if I can get more witnesses here from New York, I hope to prove Isidor Fisch was the man who jumped over the cemetery fence; that he received the money from Dr. Condon."

Dr. John F. (Jafse) Condon testified for the state that Hauptmann leaped over a cemetery fence to meet him and that he subsequently paid to Hauptmann the $50,000 Lindbergh ransom.

The testimony was given by Benjamin Heier, 24, who identified himself as a writer now employed as a restaurant cashier.

He said he was in a parked car with a young lady who later married another man and who is now dead, and saw Fisch leap to the sidewalk from the cemetery wall on the night of April 2, 1932.

It was on that date that Dr. John F. (Jafse) Condon testified he paid the ransom to Hauptmann while Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh waited in a parked car.

Hauptmann, accused of kidnapping and murdering Colonel Lindbergh's infant son, claimed Fisch gave him the block of ransom money which was found in his garage, and Hauptmann's attorneys today openly accused Fisch of being the man who collected the ransom.

Heier said he identified Fisch from pictures in the newspapers, shown a picture of Fisch, he said: "There is a strong resemblance."

He said the man he saw took several steps toward his car and his face was well lighted by the car's headlights.

Heier was asked to answer "By" when Edward J. Reilly, chief defense counsel, asked if the young lady he was with ever had referred to the incident at the cemetery in a letter. The state, however, kept the letter from evidence.

Attorney General Wilentz cross-examined Heier, immediately brought out that he had once been convicted; also that his name had been used in connection with the operation of a "hot" car. Heier said he was well-known as a "hot."

Close to contempt. Heier skirted close to contempt of court when he refused to give the name of the girl he was with that night he said he saw Fisch. "I refuse to answer," he declared when Wilentz asked him the name of the parents, and after the court had directed than an answer be given.

Finally he said the girl's name was Schwartz and that her parents were named Schwartz and that they lived on Webster avenue in the Bronx. He said he couldn't remember the number. Wilentz reminded him that direct examination he had said he knew the number.

"I wouldn't tell if I did remember," Heier said.

Wilentz brought out that Heier had not told any authorities about his experience, and that he did not recall the incident until last Saturday.

The court ruled out an effort by the defense to show that Fisch visited a woman late in 1933 at Riverside, Long Island, bearing certain packages.

The court also suppressed, temporarily at least, a defense subpoena which would have required Col. H. Norman Schwartzkopf to produce the releases he gave to newspapers during the Lindbergh kidnapping investigation, and ruled out the testimony of a theatre patron with which the defense intended to attack the memory of a state witness who said Hauptmann spent a ransom bill on November 26, 1933.

The defense hinted, through questions to a department of justice agent, John S. Seykora, that it might attack the conditional condition of Dr. John F. (Jafse) Condon, Lindbergh immediately, who testified he paid Hauptmann the ransom money in a Bronx graveyard on the night of April 2, 1932.

Through Philip Moses, a Bronx taxi driver, the defense sought to show the presence of four mysterious men near the graveyard on the night of the payment.

Among many other witnesses who took the stand before the noon recess was Mrs. Maria Mueller, Mrs. Hauptmann's niece, who said Hauptmann was at his own birthday party on the night of November 16, 1932, when he was alleged to have sent a ransom bill in a theatre. The date was prior to the day on which Hauptmann claimed Fisch gave him part of the ransom money in an unopened shoe box.

Edward J. Reilly, defense chief counsel, asked the agent Seykora if he knew of any report in existence which showed that Dr. Condon, had been examined by alienists.

"I have never heard of any such report," the agent said. Attorney General David T. Wilentz denied that there was any such fact.

Not eccentric. "Did your investigation disclose that in the Bronx he was looked upon as eccentric?" Reilly asked.

"I wouldn't say so, generally," said Seykora. "As a general term No. 1 am not qualified to say whether he is looked upon as being eccentric or not."

"Did your investigation disclose the fact that he sometimes dressed as a woman and masqueraded around the neighborhood?"

"No, sir, it disclosed no such fact."

"Did anybody in official life, in Washington from the President, not this present president, but the president then, stay your hand toward Dr. Condon?"

"Never in the slightest way that I know of, no, sir."

In cross-examination Wilentz asked Seykora:

Leader in Bronx. "Is it not a fact that Dr. Condon was known throughout the Bronx as a leader of Boy Scout, Girl Scout and other civic movements and as a patriotic citizen?"

"Yes, Sir."

With a view to showing that Fisch was the collector of the ransom the defense put on the stand Mrs. Martha Hoff, who testified that she was visited on November 1933, by Fisch and a farmer named Budeure who lived at Lebanon, N. J., 20 miles from the Lindbergh estate.

The visit, she said, was at her home at Bayville, N. J.

Reilly, fighting to get into the record testimony that Fisch carried bundles at the time, declared hotly:

"During the day if I can get more witnesses here from New York, I hope to prove Isidor Fisch was the man who jumped over the cemetery fence; that he received the money from Dr. Condon."

Dr. John F. (Jafse) Condon testified for the state that Hauptmann leaped over a cemetery fence to meet him and that he subsequently paid to Hauptmann the $50,000 Lindbergh ransom.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Feb. 5.—(P)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann's defense today produced a witness who testified he saw the late Isidor Fisch jump over a wall at St. Raymond's cemetery, the Bronx, on the night of the $50,000 Lindbergh ransom was paid there.

PLUMBER DECLARES ATTIC BOARD STILL IN PLACE AUGUST

DEFENSE CONTINUES DRIVE TO HOOK CRIME IN THE DEAD ISADOR FISCH

By WILLIAM A. KINNEY
(Copyright, 1935, By Associated Press.)
FLEMINGTON, N. J., —(AP)—A Bronx plumber testified today that an attic floor board, which the state charged was used in the Lindbergh kidnap ladder, was not noted by him to be missing when he investigated a leak in August, 1934.

Gustavo Miller, the plumber, said he examined the attic at that time for six to seven minutes and could remember no boards missing.

The state had produced testimony after Hauptmann's trial that the attic board was missing from the attic, and that an upright from the kidnap ladder fitted into the vacant space, jibbing with it even to the nail holes and the slant of the nails.

This evidence was further supported by a book expert who said the grain of the ladder upright matched that of a section from which the missing floorboard had been sawn.

Baby Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., was kidnapped and slain on March 1, 1932. The state's contention is that the floorboard was torn up before that time for use in the ladder which was left near the scene of the crime.

"Did you look at the boards?"
Edward J. Reilly, defense chief, asked Miller.

"Didn't notice missing board."
"I looked at them, certainly,
when I walked along," he replied.
"Your best recollection is that you didn't notice any board missing?"

"No, sir."

Miller also supported Haupt-mann's story of a leak in the closet, where Hauptmann said he stored a shoe box given to him by Isador Fisch.

Hauptmann had testified the shoe box became ransacked, that he accidentally struck it with a broom, damaging it, so that he discovered it contained money.

This money—$14,600 in Lindbergh ransom notes—was found in Hauptmann's garage after his arrest. He did not count the money at once, he said, and he explained this was because it was wet and had to be dried.

Miller testified rain ran down a vent pipe from the roof of the house.

Fall Get Money In Record.
The defense, right to save Hauptmann from the electric chair for the kidnapping and murder of Baby Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., sought to get into the record testimony from another witness that would have shown, Hauptmann's attorneys said, that Fisch displayed gold notes in May, 1933.

Justice Thomas W. Trenchard ruled the defense first have to prove the gold notes were ransom notes. The witness, Oscar John Bruchmann, a taxi driver once employed by Fisch, left the stand after testifying only that Fisch displayed a large roll of money, then paying for a taxi ride in May, 1933.

Reilly, in answer to objection
by Attorney General David T.
Wilentz, declared Bruchmann's testimony was offered "for the purpose of showing the sudden affluence of Fisch and his wealth and his display of certain gold-back bills that he had in May, 1933."

Wilentz objected again to "taking from the mouth of a dead man and bringing into this court words which it is impossible to meet and which he knows is impossible to meet."

Reilly Pushes Issue.
Reilly replied:
"I say it is material and it is competent to know and we have charged here in the defense repeatedly—that this money was in the possession of Fisch and the box that he gave to Hauptmann Hauptmann has testified he left with him, and it contained money which afterwards people have demonstrated here contained notes that had been registered as part of the Lindbergh money."

"Now it is unfortunate that Mr.
Fisch died, but still it is part of our case, we contend to show that Fisch was going around New York after the ransom money had been paid by Dr. John F. (Jaffey) Condon, exhibiting gold bills to different people and trying to exchange them with different people, and that he left part of them with Mr. Hauptmann."

Must Prove Ransom Cash.
Justice Thomas W. Trenchard ruled, at a conference before his bench just before declaring the recess, that the defense would have to show that the money Fisch was alleged to have exchanged to Bruchmann was actually ransom money.

Otherwise, the court said, Hauptmann's attorneys would be to abandon that line of questioning.

Earlier the defense used a witness to say that Fisch had carried a shoe box in May 1933. It was in a shoe box that Hauptmann, claimed Fisch gave him, for safekeeping and without telling him of the contents, the $14-600 Lindbergh ransom money which was discovered in his garage.

His attorneys also called several New Jersey police officers and through them re-emphasized the failure of the authorities to find any fingerprints of Hauptmann on the kidnap ladder or in the nursery from which Baby Charles
A. Lindbergh, Jr., was stolen.

Experts Called.
Sjostrom of the New Jersey state police and learned from him that of 68 finger marks found on the ladder—after it had been handled by "hundreds of people"—only eight were identified, and none of these were Haupt-mann's.

The prosecution immediately brought out that if Hauptmann had handled the ladder and had worn gloves, fingerprints would not be found.

The prints found, it was testified, were produced by a silver nitrate method discovery, after the kidnapping date, March 1, 1932.

Several police have testified that fingerprints of value were found on the ladder immediately after the crime.

Sergeant Louis Kubler, a New Jersey trooper sometimes assigned to fingerprint work, was examined along similar lines, and Trooper Frank A. Kelly was called to find any fingerprints in the Lindbergh nursery or upon the crib from which Baby Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., was stolen. The defense emphasized the absence of nursery fingerprints, and handled the point that Mrs.
Anne Morrow Lindbergh, the lady's mother, and Betty Gow, the nurse, had been in the nursery and handled the crib just prior to the kidnapping.

Fish Box.
Sam Streppone, a Bronx radio repairman who acknowledged on cross-examination that he had been in an institution for a depressive psychosis, said "Fisch called to state again, in May, 1933, and left a shoe box with him for six hours, picking it up again himself."

Hauptmann claimed that Fisch, now dead, left a shoe box with him on December 2, 1933, and that he (Hauptmann) was unaware the box contained $14,600
Lindbergh ransom money.

Hauptmann is accused of kidnaping, murdering and collecting ransom for Baby Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., the $14,600 in ransom money was found in his garage in the Bronx after his arrest followed the spending of one of the ransom bills at a gasoline station.

photographs did not give a complete view of the ladder, and the ladder and that the parts pictured could not be identified.
Q. How many photographs were taken of the ladder?

Q. Is that all?

A. Yes.

Many Fingerprints.

Q. Does that mean you got only 68 fingerprints?

A. There were approximately 125 finger marks in those photographs.

Q. You didn't find any fingerprints with the state police method?

A. No.

Q. But after 13 days, with Dr.
Hudson's method, some were found?

A. Several hundred people handled the ladder between March and the time the silver nitrate process of Dr. Hudson was used.

Q. So after 13 days, Sergeant Kelly, A. Kelly, fingerprint expert found some?

A. None of value. There were so many.

The investigator said the state police had examined the ladder immediately after arrival at the estate after the crime and found no prints.

Merely Demonstration.
The lieutenant said Dr. Hudson did not process the ladder, but only demonstrated his silver nitrate method to state police who later employed it in their hunt for prints.

The 68 pictures taken of the ladder were produced and Fisher brought out the information that there was no information as to the exact spot the photos showed.
Sjostrom said they were classified merely by the ladder sections from which they were taken.

Fisher brought out from Sjost-rom that only ten small pictures had been taken of the entire third section of the ladder. The section was the top part and the state's theory is it was not used by the kidnapers to enter the nursery.

Q. Now you ran down the identities of those fingerprints you found on the ladder?

A. None.

Q. As far as possible?

A. As far as possible.

Q. How many were identified?

A. Eight.

Q. Did at any time you identify the fingerprints of this defendant, Richard Hauptmann?

A. No.

State Takes Witness.
"Take the witness," said Fisher.
Wilentz took up the questioning.

Q. If this defendant wore gloves, his fingerprints wouldn't show?

A. No.

Q. It's been your experience that criminals frequently wear gloves?

A. Yes.

Fisher intervened to ask:
Q. A mother or a nurse putting a baby to bed doesn't wear gloves, in your experience?

A. Not in my experience.

The witness was excused.

Another state trooper, Sergeant
Louis Kubler, a fingerprint expert, followed Sjostrom to the stand. Fisher immediately began to quiz him on the examination of
the ladder for fingerprints.

He told of Dr. Hudson's visit to the Lindbergh estate on March 12 or 14, after the kidnapping.

Q. What was he down there for?

To Demonstrate New Process.
A. To demonstrate a new process, known as the silver nitrate process, designed to bring out latent fingerprints on wood.

Dr. Hudson, Kubler said, demonstrated his process on two other pieces of wood in the basement of the Lindbergh home.

One section of the ladder was used later by Dr. Hudson to make a test in the back yard.

Q. Any prints discovered?

A. Yes, a few, but they were not readable.

ler said, and he continued the application of the process, "off and on" for two weeks.

Q. Eventually, you did complete the processing of the ladder. How many prints were found?

A. About 125 markings were found. Only about 20 were readable.

Fisher asked what effect silver nitrate had when applied to wood.

Kubler said the lumber turned red, but its color could be restored
by washing it with a bichloride of mercury solution.

Ladder Prints Destroyed.
The young attorney then made much of the fact the ladder prints were destroyed when the silver nitrate coloring was washed.

The witness asserted he did not know that Dr. Hudson had produced 500 prints from the ladder or that 1,200 pictures had been made of it.

Kubler told Fisher he had never used Dr. Hudson's process in investigation of an actual crime.

Fisher asked a few more questions and had the witness say that a man might make a print at one time and not at another.

Q. So a man might carry lumber around, handle it and still not leave a print?

A. It is possible, yes.

Wilentz took the witness for a brief cross-examination and elicited the testimony that the silver nitrate was washed from the ladder by Arthur Koehler, wood expert from the U. S. forest products laboratory, Madison, Wis.

The purpose of the washing was to prepare the ladder for court.

The witness was then excused.

Another Trooper Called.
Trooper Frank A. Kelly, of the state police, was called next to tell of his methods in examining the interior of the Lindbergh nursery for fingerprints. As a state witness, he told of using a black powder method and failing to find readable prints.

Wilentz objected that the testimony was repetitious, but Justice Trenchard ruled that the defense must show that the "gold backs" the taxi driver allegedly saw in Fisch's possession were ransom money or the line of questioning could not be pursued.

Woman Juror Silently Ill.
FLEMINGTON, N. J., Feb. 6.—
(AP)—A doctor was called today for Mrs. Snyder, Hauptmann juror, who sat hunched over her three cakes last night at a jury dinner.

Dr. Barely H. Fuhrmann took his little black bag to Mrs. Synder's room on request of Sheriff John H. Cullen, who said,
"She has a slight cold."

Fuhrmann reported after his visit, "and of course overeating aggravates a cold."

"She will take medicine in the courtroom today."

Mrs. Snyder came to court in her garden flower dress—moss roses on a blue background—but had a subdued air. She solemnly answered "here" when the roll was called.

Justice Thomas W. Trenchard came down from the bench and inquired solicitously about her health.

"I'm fine," said Mrs. Snyder, with a feeble smile.

After a brief recess Fisher re-

GREENVILLE MAN NAMED MANAGER FIRESTONE HERE

STORE IS DEPARTMENTIZED UNDER NEW NATIONAL OPERATING PLANS

New management and a "new deal" and announcement of the addition of a new department was reported Wednesday morning by Mr. Kinney, recently appointed manager of the Firestone Service Store in Corsicana.

In addition to Mr. Kinney, who comes to Corsicana from Greenville, the store has a new credit manager in the person of J. C.
Jackson, formerly with the Lone Star Gas Company; V. D. Brannon, district salesman, completes the Corsicana official staff.

Mr. Kinney's unchanged, Mr.
Kinney reported.

The store is being completely departmentized under the new national operating plan, and new equipment is being received daily and will be installed as soon as possible, along with a complete stock of automobile supplies and accessories, an innovation for the company. Mr. Kinney stated that the new supply department would cater both to retail and wholesale trade and would endeavor at all times to carry a complete line of wholesale and retail goods for automotive comfort and convenience.

New display windows and display equipment, a changing of the office arrangement, and other improvements are contemplated and will be undertaken shortly.

Retail and Wholesale.
The new manager pointed out that the distribution set-up in Corsicana was novel, and was being closely watched by company officials as a test unit. He renewed his question about the ladder investigations.

Q. Did the police make a scale model of the ladder?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever learn that similar ladders were built and used in South Jersey among negro fruit pickers?

A. No.

Kelly said he made no effort to learn the age of the lumber, or when it was cut. No reports on the point, he added, had come to his attention.

Wilentz renewed his protest that the testimony Fisher sought to lead Kelly through had been given.

Fisher Irritated.
Fisher sat down, showing obvious irritation. His tone became biting as he switched the questions again to Kelly's methods.

Another state trooper, Sergeant
Louis Kubler, a fingerprint expert, followed Sjostrom to the stand. Fisher immediately began to quiz him on the examination of
the ladder for fingerprints.

He told of Dr. Hudson's visit
to the Lindbergh estate on March

onstrated his process on two other

ler said, and he continued the ap-

able.

Fisher asked what effect silver
nitrate had when applied to wood.

red, but its color could be restored
by washing it with a bichloride

vestigation of an actual crime.

At Palace Sunday

Perhaps the most ambitious and costly spectacle that Hollywood has ever attempted, Paramount's "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer" has at last been screened and comes Sunday to the Palace theatre after four years of unremitting effort in its production.

Featuring Gary Cooper, Franchot Tone, Richard Cromwell and Sir Guy Standing in the principal roles, "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer" is a stirring, colorful and action-packed story of the exploits and adventures of England's Colonial soldiers in India.

The story of "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer" is that of the extraordinary bravery, discipline and skill that has enabled a mere handful of English officers to hold sway over the teeming millions of India. Cooper is a captain of the 41st Bengal Lancers, commanded by Sir Guy Standing, when Sir Guy's son, played by Richard Cromwell, arrives as a new recruit.

Cooper and Tone, also an officer of the regiment, take over the training of the young lad, but, on a visit to an adjoining province, Cromwell becomes involved with a beautiful girl and is kidnapped by Mohammed Khan, a hostile leader, who hopes that his father will pursue him and thus lead the Lancers to disaster.

Directed by Henry Hathaway, "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer" has had more than four thousand players in its cast during the four years of production.

Monte Blue, Douglas Dumbrille, Kathleen Burke, C. Aubrey Smith, Colin Tapley and Akim Tamiroff appear in the supporting cast.

THE ULTIMATE END
Whether at last he runs the state,
Whether he paints a picture great
Or finds a way to gather gold
More than his own two hands can hold,
'Tis vain unless he sweetly sleeps Within the cherished home he keeps.
Whether he does some daring deed;
Pens books the multitude will read;
Writes songs the whole wide world will sing,
But little joy to him 'twill bring Unless with infinite delight
He turns his face toward home at night.
Man can be clever and grow strong Rise high above the teeming thrung
And not attain that sweet content For which his days of toil are spent,
Unless, when falls the evening gloom,
He finds his greatest joys at home.

SIMPLE PANACEAS.

This country is so full of plans that the planners and their adherents are stepping on each other's feet and punching each other's noses. It is confusing and sometimes distressing. All these panaceas are bound to fail. Nevertheless all of the plans with large following are effective to some extent. They influence public opinion and thereby influence leaders in government and business. But they lose their identity.

Any simple remedy for economic and political ills is sure to be crude. The simpler it is, the more it is to be suspected. Government and business are vastly complex processes. No single prophet can be accepted as all-wise, no single medicine can cure all that ails us. If our economic society could have been placed on a secure road of prosperity by anything so simple as some of the schemes now urged, it would have been thought of and applied long ago and we would all be rich and happy now.

What we need is practical common sense to sift out, as we go along, the parts of the various plans proposed that will help to tide us over immediate crises, and to back them up with carefully devised long-range policies. We are accomplishing a good deal along these lines nationally, regionally and locally.

A KING WANTS A WIFE

Evidently some of our American girls who have hastened to attach themselves to a European princely title—some one has lately said that all that some princes need to carry their titles is possession of a little farm, a cow, a pig and a horse—and their millions to a dash to a Don Juan might better have waited. It appears now that there is a kingly title on the market.

King Zog of Albania is the only bachelor sovereign in the world. He is spoken of as being lonely. He is 39 years old and has been a king for seven years, previously serving as president of the republic for three years. It was his mother's dying request that he provide an heir to the throne. So now, according to reports, he is scanning the American marriage market. He makes only two conditions. One is that "she" must be personally attractive. As to that, we can assure King Zog that the American marriage market is well supplied with material that must inevitably be attractive to any gentleman of discernment. The other condition is that "she" must have an income of at least a million a year. Well, we have a few who can still qualify. It might even be that some of our American princesses would be pleased to trade off their present incumbrances for something ranking higher.

They are pretty rough and wild in Albania. They are mountaineers and fighters and some of them indulge in brigandage on the side. Doubtless, too, they are picturesque. And some persons have been known to squander various millions for attainment of that. Life in Albania might not be too dull—with Paris never far away.

Mr. Richberg and the General have clasped hands again. Whether in good fellowship or in self-defense, only time will tell.

It must be tragic to be a humorist with brains, and have people start haw-hawing every time you open your mouth.

While silver oratory in Congress flows on, there's golden silence in the supreme court.

CARELESS OF THE TRUTH

All men are liars. Not conscious, malicious liars but unconscious liars, in the sense that their talk and their treatment of issues daily falls short of the exalted ideal of truthfulness that does not admit partial, distorted or exaggerated reports.

The most difficult thing in the world is to recognize a fact when it is a fact and to state a fact truthfully. It is not an easy thing to see a fact clearly. To state it clearly is even harder.

The unconscious liar has inaccurate powers of comprehension or inadequate powers of expression, or both. His morals are not at fault. His mind is very like a window which distorts the landscape.

Everybody is acquainted with one or more of his kind. Political campaigns turn the spotlight upon them. The unconscious liar talking politics will condemn the enemy for being careless with the truth and in the next breath will misquote, misinterpret and misunderstand every utterance and policy of the other camp.

Professional lobbyists are often unconscious liars. It is a habit they form in their zeal for making out a good case for their cause. Truth is of interest to them only when it serves their uses. Half truths and untruths they will cite as truths when it serves their purpose. And impressionable legislators accept it all as gospel truth.

WAR COST MORE.

There is still one way to make government expenditures for recovery look small. That is to compare them with the cost of the World War. In the detailed annual report of the treasury, one finds that up to June 30, 1921, the estimated war cost was $27,729,000,000. There should be added to that $9,557,000,000 interest on war debt, $6,391,000,000 for veterans administration and $88,000,000 settlement of war claims. None of this includes the ten or twelve billions in war debts, very little of which probably will ever be paid, or the cost of bonuses, veterans' care, and pensions for the next 75 years.

The war didn't give the United States anything in return for those 50 to 100 billions except a bad national headache and a lot of problems not yet solved.

A child is just a stomach entirely surrounded by curiosity.

MISUSED DICTIONARY.

It grows more and more difficult to tell who are bright pupils and who are not. The director of the bureau of educational research at the University of Michigan has been studying the study habits of a great many children. He announces that the sixth-grade pupil who keeps a dictionary beside him and promptly looks up every hard word he meets is in all probability a poor student.

On the other hand, the lad who ignores the dictionary is probably pretty good. He figures out word meanings for himself and grasps the whole context of what he is studying. This does not mean that he never looks up a new word, but merely that he grapples with it first and uses his mind on it, turning only to the dictionary for further enlightenment when necessary.

The habitual dictionary-user does not use it very effectively. He is content to take the first definition he comes to and hardly ever considers such matters as derivation. A bright pupil who uses his dictionary effectively searches critically for the various shades of meaning.

So it's mainly a question of the student "using his mind on it." Mindless study never amounts to much.

Repayment Crop Loans In County At High Record

Navarro county is leading this district in repayment of loans made through the Emergency Crop Loan section of the Farm Credit Administration with collections of about 98 per cent according to H. R. Slaughter, district agent. Mr. Slaughter said that this county ranked among the leaders in the state.

Kerens area led the list with 90 out of 91 loans paid. Twelve loans remain unpaid in this county and some of them will be partially retired, the district representative said.

At present collections in Hill county approximate 82 per cent with the same proportion for Freestone county; Limestone county is about 87 per cent collected.

Number of Texas Relief Families Showed Increase

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5. (AP)—Latest figures compiled by the Federal Emergency Relief Rolls increased from November to December by about 6 per cent and the disbursements increased 11 per cent for the same period.

The FERA said 229,712 families were on relief rolls in November and 243,799 in December. The aid was $5,005,355 for November, and $5,555,293 for December.

The general average for all states was an increase of 5.8 per cent in number of families and 4.2 per cent in expense.

Mrs. Ross Harris Moving Waxahachie Be With Son There

Mrs. Ross Harris announced Wednesday morning that she would move to Waxahachie to be with her son, Ogden, student of Trinity University, until the close of the present term. At the close of school she will make her home in Port Arthur. She will go to Greenville a few days before moving to Waxahachie.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Harris, Jr., will return to Port Arthur Friday where he will resume his duties with the Texas Company.

PLANS OUTLINED FOR NAVARRO COUNTY CLUBS' ACTIVITIES

Plans for the activities of Navarro county Home Demonstration Clubs were outlined at a meeting of the club council at the Corsicana Public Library Saturday afternoon, and a schedule of visitation adopted for the county agent. The theme for the month will be "The Present National Food Situation."

A school for club reporters was held prior to the council session and officers elected for the year. More than 40 representatives of clubs attended the council meeting, and heard the program for the year discussed by the county agent.

A joint meeting of the Farm Demonstration and Home Demonstration councils was announced for Friday night, February 8, at 7 o'clock at the Natatorium, to be followed at 7:30 by a county recreational school. Sponsors of boys and girls 4-H clubs, chairman of club recreational committees, members of the farm demonstration councils and others are urged to be present.

A district recreational school to be held at Dallas February 18-22 was also announced and delegates from Navarro county will be named shortly.

The following schedule of visitation for the home demonstration agent for February was announced, with all meetings scheduled in the afternoon (dates indicated by numeral after name):
Winkler 5, Chaffield 6, Eureka 7, Blue Ridge 8, 4-H Club council in Corsicana on 9th; Oak Valley 11, Corbett 12, Whites Chapel 13, Stansell 14, Powell 15, Independence 18, Navarro 19, Jones Ranch 20, Richland 21, Finch 22, Mt. Nebo 25, Emhouse 26, Tupelo 27.

Full Meeting Report.
The Home Demonstration Council of Navarro county met in session at the Carnegie Library Feb. 2 at 2 o'clock with Jones Ranch in charge of preliminaries. The club prayer was offered, after which new club rolls were requested for record, together with all committees and submitted to Miss McNabb, home demonstration agent. A new finance committee was appointed by Mrs. Williams, chairman, as follows: Mrs. H. R. Emerson, Mrs. W. C. Reed and Mrs. Earl Dawson. Mrs. Leo Sands was appointed to fill the unexpired term of Mrs. Hodge of the year book committee. The roll was called and the following clubs answered: Emhouse, Jones Ranch, Chaffield, Powell, White's Chapel, Navarro, Tupelo, Richland, Finch, Stancel, Eureka, Blue Ridge, Long Prairie and Corbett.

An earnest request was stressed by Miss McNabb in an enthusiastic discussion of her farm program for 1935 to form community organizations to work with Home Demonstration Council and the

A recreation party was announced for February 8, with place and arrangements to be announced by Miss McNabb later. Miss McNabb stressed the assurance that all chairmen of recreation committees of the different clubs together with their husbands are invited also all sponsors of girls' clubs and their husbands. Delegates from the above-mentioned group will be elected to attend the recreation school at Dallas Feb. 18 to 22.

Miss Ona Ramage, in her report of the Hillsboro reporters school, said Miss Minnie Cunningham stressed the accuracy of reports.

The purchase of new secretary's books was authorized so that each year's report might be filed separately. After adjournment, Miss Mary Belle Bonner of Eureka served delicious refreshments consisting of crackers and cheese, the cheese being a home product from the cheese demonstration project, the junior high school Jan. 9, and was served to 37 members and visitors of the council.

REPORTER.

Beautification of Court House Lawn Is Well Under Way
At a full meeting of all the Navarro county vice chairmen of the Eighteenth District Highway Beautification Association, of which Mrs. J. M. Tullis is county chairman, Mrs. R. R. Range, president of the Corsicana Garden Club was elected chairman of the Navarro county court house beautification project, and Mrs. W. H. McNabb, Mrs. W. C. Stroube and Mrs. Wade Smith, her committee.

Plans for the planting of the court house lawn were drawn, and blue prints made by Louis Miller, landscape architect, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Miller, and CWA labor was offered. Mrs. Range and her committee tee have been working since October, towards this project, but active work did not begin until two weeks ago, and Mrs. Range has spared neither time nor energy in seeing that Frank Merrill and his CWA workers were doing the planting according to the plan.

Mrs. Range stated that a few substitutions had to be made in the 17 varieties of the 234 shrubs called for in the plans.

Dead Trees Removed.
She also stated that all the dead trees and shrubs were taken up the lawn leveled, and the beds refilled with fresh and suitable soil, and that the shrubs that formerly bordered the walks had been transplanted in groups at the east and west sides of the lawn.

Hardy lantana has been planted around both statues, and a crepe myrtle has been planted on the north side. Seventy-five of the evergreens planted were the Pfizer Juniper. Other shrubs used were Boksess, jasmene Florida, Abelia grandiflora, photinia scrubula, Virginia juniper, crepe myrtle, wax leaf ligustrum, Japanese ligustrum, crepe jasmene, upright ligustrum, pomgranite and Mahone.

The cacti bed, a gift from Mrs. Fred M. Allison of the Better Gardens Club, which has been planted for a year or longer, is also an attractive spot on the west side.

Corsicana and Navarro county, as a whole, will have just cause to be proud of the court house lawn, and of Mrs. Range, who is responsible for putting the project over in such an excellent manner.

The defense contended he was a hostile witness. Another alibi witness also testified for Hauptmann. Walter Manley, a Bronx painter, said Hauptmann was in the bakery in the Bronx on the evening of March 1, 1932, when the Lindbergh baby was stolen more than 60 miles away at Hopewell, N. J.

The defense's plane demonstration was given by Stanley Seal, a young pattern maker.

Dr. Hudson clung to his testimony that the "fingerprint" was a part of the kidnap ladder which the state charges came from Hauptmann's attic and fitted there—had only one square nail hole when he saw it on March 13, 1932, thirteen days after Baby Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., was kidnapped and slain.

The rail, in evidence, has four nail holes which state experts and police said jibed with nail holes in the joists of Hauptmann's attic.

Out of court after Hudson's testimony, the state said that photographs of the nail holes were made before he examined the ladder. A state trooper said he noticed ten nail holes on the night of the kidnapping.

Verdict Challenged.

The defense also sought to weaken the identification of Hauptmann as a man seen lurking near the Lindbergh home before the crime by calling William Diehl, a lumber dealer, and reputation of his relative Millard Whitteled for veracity was "not good."

The two men do not spell their names the same way. Whitteled testified for the state, placing Hauptmann near the Lindbergh home. William Diehl, another resident of the Sourlands hills, followed. As to Whitteled's reputation for veracity, he said:

"Taint any good."

George E. Lenz also said "not good" for Whitteled's veracity.

Witnesses Discredited.

The state, in cross-examination of the three Sourland men, brought out that Whitteled had been in jail, that Lenz had trouble with Whitteled over a lumpy bill, and that Diehl signed a statement to the effect that he had not discussed Whitteled's reputation for veracity. Diehl explained he could not read the statement he signed.

Augusta Hile, mother-in-law of Gerta Henkel who testified yesterday, said the dead Isador Fisch, who is accused by the defense as the receiver of the ransom money, was killed by her from her and never paid it back. Fisch died in Germany, Karl Henkel, Gerta's husband, testified he had known Fisch since 1932; also that he had never felt there was anything improper between Hauptmann and his wife.

Henry Uhlig Testifies.

It had been testified Hauptmann frequently drank coffee with Mrs. Henkel at her home in the mornings while his own wife was young and healthy.

Fisch was a former business partner of Hauptmann's and it was from him, Hauptmann claimed, that $14,600 ransom money came in the Hauptmann garage can.

Henry Uhlig, mutual friend of the two men, described by himself as "Fisch's best friend," was on the stand just long enough to tell the jury Fisch ran a "phony" bakery, was in weak financial condition when he sailed for Europe in December, 1933, and had never loaned him money, when Luncheon Creek interrupted.

Uhlig Testifies "Hostile."

When Uhlig resumed the stand after the recess Edward J. Rellly tried to show that he was a hostile witness, subject to cross-examination. He failed to develop this, however.

Rellly elicited from him testimony that Fisch left two suit cases to Hauptmann before he sailed for Germany, but a question about a smaller package, presumably the shoe box in which Hauptmann claims Fisch gave him $14,600 in ransom money, was blocked by a state objection.

The defense then showed him the envelope of one of the 14 ransom notes which were received by Colonel Lindbergh after the kidnapping and which state handwriting experts said Hauptmann wrote.

"Does that resemble Fisch's printing?" he asked.

"I don't know," Uhlig said.

Uhlig also was asked about a letter from Fisch to a friend who lived in Brooklyn. He did not know where Kern lived in March, 1932, nor did he know where Hauptmann lived at that time.

Another Alibi Witness.

The attorney general asked Uhlig only one question on cross examination. That was whether Hauptmann was an American citizen.

Uhlig said he was.

Walter Manley, a Bronx painter, followed as an alibi witness, to say as several others did before him that Hauptmann was in the Bronx bakery on the night of March 1, 1932, when the Lindbergh child was stolen. He said he was a very sick man and the state said he stood with the few cross examining questions.

Manley said he did not know Hauptmann, but identified him from newspaper pictures.

Uhlig's testimony about the nail hole in the ladder was brought up in the face of government reports to the contrary. Attorney General David T. Wilentz showed him a photograph and asked:

Wouldn't Change Him.

"Assuming that the picture was taken in March, 1932, would you agree that possibly you were mistaken in your testimony?"

"No, sir, that wouldn't."

"If the United States government report showed in 1932 that there were four nail holes, would these four very nail holes, would they lead you to change your mind?"

"No sir, it would not."

The ladder rail was considered one of the state's strongest links in the circumstances by which it tied Hauptmann to the kidnapping and murder of Baby Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

The attorney general also attacked Dr. Hudson's estimate that he had found about 500 fingerprints on the ladder, his slipper print on the floor, and the Police found only 8 prints after several hundred people had handled the ladder.

Wilentz insisted that Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, father of the slain child, told the state troopers had handled the ladder without gloves and that Dr. Hudson had found no prints of these

The witness said he believed the drooper used gloves. He didn't know that Colonel Lindbergh had handled the ladder.

Did Not Identify Prints.

He said he did not identify the prints he found.

Wilentz said he got him to say that Hauptmann's finger prints, had they been on the ladder, would have been obliterated by others superimposed later.

"Supposing that Mr. Hauptmann had his hands on this rail and then the ladder was taken down to the governor's crime conference and officials from all over the country started examining the ladder and one fellow happened to put his fingers just about where the other fingers were, that would obliterate the prints. Identifying Hauptmann's finger prints, would it not?"

"It might and it might not," he replied, "one would be superimposed over the other."

The attorney general, handling the ladder upright, took down the investigation as "rail 18", to Dr. Hudson, asked:

"And if it was a part of the piece of wood that was in the attic, then it came from Hauptmann's attic."

He said the witness agreed.

He explained he obtained no fingerprints from the Lindbergh nursery window because his method did not work on painted surfaces.

Thursday's Story Of Hauptmann Trial

Associated Press Staff Writer.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Feb. 7.—(P)—Dr. Erasmus M. Hudson, a New York physician who has made a hobby of fingerprints, was called to the defense today as the murder trial of Bruno Hauptmann edged nearer to a conclusion.

Dr. Hudson yesterday told of finding 500 fingerprints, none of them Hauptmann's when he probed the kidnap ladder with silver nitrate tests after the kidnapping. Attorney General David T. Wilentz planned to show the prints were for the most part worthless smudges, left by the numerous officials who handled the ladder in the kidnapping.

The state also planned an attack on the physician's declaration he saw only one nail hole on the so-called "attic board" upright of the ladder. Prosecution testimony has been that four nail holes were in the attic board, which matched, with nail holes on attic beams where it was alleged the upright originally had been nailed down in Hauptmann's home.

Detective Max Lee, of the New York city police, testified in court today that a rebuttal witness, their identity was not disclosed, but Lee said they would seek to clear the name of Fisch.

Court Convenes.

Relatives of Fisch, who came from Germany in the prosecution's case, appeared in court.

Court convened at 10:01 m.

Chief Defense counsel Edward J. Reilly and Anthony M. Hauck Jr., Hunterdon county prosecutor, came in about the same time.

Dr. Thomas W. Trenchard mounted to the bench the jury was polled, and Dr. Hudson, a broad, tall man with glasses went back to the stand.

Associate Defense Counsel Frederick A. Fene asked the doctor to identify some sketches and notes he made after examining the kidnap ladder.

Wilentz began cross-examination of Dr. Hudson on his specimen charts of fingerprints taken from the ladder. He said the witness said he made the charts during March, 1932, from measurements made at the Lindbergh estate from the prints on the ladder.

Ladder Nail Holes.

Q. You are mistaken yesterday in your testimony about the nail holes and the knot in rail 16 (ladder upright).

A. I told what I thought. I have other notes, not here.

Q. You turned to the physician's statement and saw only one nail hole where the state contends there were four.

Q. You appreciate the importance of the nail holes in this case?

A. No, I can't say I do.

Q. Very well, do you remember how many nail holes did you observe in the ladder holes?

A. I saw only one nail hole made by a square cut nail.

Q. You questioned.

Q. Do you remember any other nail holes in the runners, exclusive of the rung nail holes? Please answer yes or no.

A. I saw only one square nail hole.

Q. Please answer the question.

"Yes, Doctor," said Justice Trenchard, "answer the question."

"Exclusive of the rung I will say I did not," the witness answered.

At the head of my knowledge, there were no other than that one square nail hole."

Q. Did you see those nail holes?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Will you say that those holes were not there when you examined the ladder?

A. To my knowledge they were not there.

Koehler Did Not Answer.

During Hudson's examination, Arthur J. Koehler, the wood expert, testified the Madison Products laboratory, Madison, Wis., was asked how many nail holes he found in all six uprights when he first examined.

"I'd rather not say," he replied "because I don't yet testified on the subject."

He was expected to be called by the state in rebuttal.

By the way do the New York police use your fingerprint method?

A. I have no idea.

Q. On March, 1932, your process was not being used by the police departments?

A. As far as I know, they were not.

Q. You knew the New Jersey state police did not know about your process?

A. They were very glad to hear about it.

Q. Since as you know no police did use it in the country used your method?

A. Not as far as I know.

The witness next was led through an explanation of the effect of his silver nitrate process on wood. Discoloration, he said, resulted.

Unable to Determine.

Wilentz then showed him a large photograph and asked him if the piece of wood showed any signs of being treated with his silver nitrate method.

The witness said he had never been parried for several minutes before finally declaring he could not determine.

not say it had or had not been processed.

The attorney general, pursuing his interrogation, showed the witness a picture of nail holes in the ladder.

Q. Assuming that this picture were taken in March, 1932, would you agree that possibly you were mistaken yesterday in your testimony?

A. Well, under your premise I would say yes.

Q. You found saw cuts in addition to those necessary to build the ladder?

A. I saw what I thought were saw cuts.

Q. And you made a notation of them?

A. I don't recall.

Looks For Saw Cuts.

Wientz took Dr. Hudson's charts, to look, apparently without success, for any designation of the ladder.

Wientz, exhibiting another ladder picture, asked if Dr. Hudson could note any discoloration.

The witness said he couldn't tell from the photograph.

The interrogator turned back to possible notations of saw cuts in Dr. Hudson's charts. He introduced the words "saw cut seven eighths of an inch."

"Silve Nitrate," Dr. Hudson explained, "does not photograph."

Wientz changed his attack on the doctor's testimony again.

Q. So your process will produce prints for six months or a year?

A. Yes.

Effects of Atmosphere.

The doctor was led through an explanation of the effect of atmospheric conditions on the prints.

Wientz recited conditions existing at the Linderbergh estate on the Soudan mountain on the kidnap night, asking the witness what effect these would have on prints on the ladder.

Dr. Hudson said the effects would be very slight.

Q. So the part of the ladder laying on the ground would be affected?

A. Yes.

Q. And there would be no fingerprints?

A. No fingerprints.

Wientz inquired if dampness on parts of the ladder would destroy more prints. The physician said "yes."

Q. If it did get wet, the fingerprints would be destroyed?

A. From my own knowledge, yes.

Ladder Wet.

Wientz sought to bring out that atmospheric conditions on the kidnap night might have wet the ladder damp and he meant "soaking" wet when he spoke of wet.

Q. Assuming for a moment that there were prints on the ladder and other prints were superimposed by later handling, the originals would be obliterated?

A. No. Some part of them would remain.

Q. But if a hand was placed right over these prints they would be obscured?

A. Yes.

Dr. Hudson's estimate of "more than 500 fingerprints" on the ladder was attacked by Wientz.

Q. Did you count them?

A. I said about 500.

Q. Did you see them after the ladder was processed?

A. Yes.

Didn't See Photographs.

Q. Did you see the photographs of the prints?

A. No.

Q. You never testified in a trial before as a fingerprint expert?

A. Yes for the department of justice.

Q. But as a chemical expert, not a fingerprint expert?

A. Yes. I was classified as a fingerprint expert.

Q. But if there were 500 or 5,000 fingerprints on that ladder when you processed it, would you say any of them were there on March 1?

A. I would say some were there.

Hudson said he would get the prints of everyone who handled the ladder and eliminate all of their prints.

Q. Don't you know Colonel Lough who handled that ladder without gloves and your process never brought out his prints?

A. I didn't know that.

Back to Nail Holes.

Wientz went back to the nail holes.

Q. Pick out the nail hole you found in the ladder?

A. I'm sure that's it (the witness made a mark by a nail hole on the ladder).

Q. If that's the hole then that's the board?

A. Yes.

Q. And if that board matches the board in Hauptmann's attic, then you would say that it came from there?

A. Yes.

Q. You're sure that board was there on that ladder, in March, 1932?

A. Yes.

Dr. Hudson testified that prints did not sink into painted surfaces and his process would be ineffective.

Process Wouldn't Show.

So that Hauptmann might have had his hands on the window ledge, morning, noon and night and your process wouldn't show it?

A. No.

The silver nitrate process would not stick on the beer stein either, the witness said.

Pope, on re-direct examination, asked why Dr. Hudson remembered only one nail hole.

The doctor explained that his examination led him to believe the square nail had been driven through the wood into a cleat.

He believed, he said, the wood came from a crate.

Both Could Be Identified.

Q. If one fingerprint was superimposed on another, could both be identified?

A. If sufficient ridges of both appeared.

Dr. Hudson explained he entered the case merely with "the hope" he could find fingerprints but not to identify any.

Q. You testified that this board (alleged Hauptmann attic board) was there when you examined the ladder?

A. Yes.

Q. You saw one nail hole

Three persons were shot to death this afternoon at Lynn's crossing, a rural community about 15 miles northwest of here when Arthur Le Grone, a resident of the community, began firing on members of his family in reports to the sheriff's office said.

The reports to the sheriff's office said Le Grone shot his wife and baby and his father-in-law.

Sherrill Dickerson was rushed to the scene. The deputies said they were told that LeGrone had "gone berserk" following domestic troubles.

then and there are more now would you still say so?

Wientz objected, asserting that Dr. Hudson had already testified it was the board and had identified the square nail hole in it.

Dr. Hudson was excused and court recessed for five minutes at 11:36 a. m.

Hauk during the recess, said the photographs showed Dr. Hudson showed four square nail holes and were taken March 8, 1932. Dr. Hudson first saw the ladder March 13, 1932.

William Whitehead, a dark middle-aged man was called by the defense.

The defense planned to use the witness to attack the credibility of Millard Whited, the state witness who placed Hauptmann twice near the Lindbergh home prior to the crime.

The roughly-dressed witness said he had known and had known Millard Whited all his life. The questions were put by C. Lloyd Fisher, co-counsel for defense.

Q. What's the reputation of Millard Whited for veracity?
A. Not good.

The witness been in jail.

Fisher asked if Millard Whited had ever been in jail.

Whitehead said no.

"Have you ever been in jail?" Wientz asked.

"Yes," Whitehead replied, "That's all," said Wientz.

George E. Lenz, another witness on Whitehead's credibility, followed.

He said he lived in Hopewell, at Featherbed Lane, and had known Whited for 20 years.

Q. What is the reputation of Millard Whited for telling the truth? Fisher asked.

A. Not good.

William Dohl, another Hopewell resident was then sworn.

He told Fisher he knew Whited.

Q. What is his reputation for truthfulness?
A. Taint any good.

Loaned Fisch Money.

Mrs. Augusta Hile, the mother-in-law of Gerta Henkel, was the next witness.

She testified she knew Isador Fisch ever since he came to this country.

Q. Did he borrow some money from you?
A. $4,350.

Q. Did he pay you back before he sailed for Germany?
A. Not a cent.

"When did you last see him," Reilly asked.

"Oh, I see him the second of December (1933).

Mrs. Hile said she loaned the money in three parts," Fisch. Part of it went into a pie baking concern and part in furs.

Karl Henkel, husband of Gerta, was then sworn.

Q. How long do you know Isador Fisch?
A. Since 1926.

Q. How long do you know Hauptmann?
A. Since 1932.

Q. Where did you meet Fisch?
A. We had an apartment together in 1928. (With Fisch and Henry Uhligh).

Q. You have married then and went to live with your wife?
A. Yes. Fisch and Uhligh stayed together.

Friendly With Hauptmann.

Henkel said his wife met Hauptmann about eight days before she was shot. Subsequently he said, he and Hauptmann became very friendly.

Q. Did you know Hauptmann used to drop in and have coffee at your house in the morning?
A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever see anything improper?
A. No.

Q. Ever feel there was anything improper?
A. Never.

Wientz, in cross-examination, broomed Henkel that he had introduced Hauptmann to Fisch in his own home.

Q. Did your wife bring Hauptmann to your home and introduce you?
A. No.

Fisch, the mutual friend of Hauptmann and the deceased Fisch, was called. He described himself as "Fisch's best friend."

He related briefly how he, Fisch and Henkel lived together when they came to this country.

Q. What business was he in?
A. Fur cutting.

Invested in Pie Bakery.

Uhligh said Fisch also had been in the pie making business, and had operated as a fur trader.

Q. He paid your fare to Germany.
A. With money I lent him to invest in his money bakery.

Uhligh described Fisch's physical condition during the trip to Europe as "weak."

The German furrier coughed, he said, and retired early because of his condition.

The witness recalled there was no limit on the amount of American money a traveller could bring into Germany when he and Fisch arrived there in December, 1933. He explained, however, that Fisch carried dollars for marks, a traveller would have to go to a government bureau.

Uhligh described a traveling bag bought by Fisch.

Q. What did he have in it?
A. I don't know.

Uhligh said Fisch told him he was how Fisch acted when he was being examined by the immigration inspectors at Hamburg. Wientz objected and was upheld.

Justice Trenchard ordered the luncheon recess at 12:38 p. m.

MAN UNDER INDICTMENT IN BREMER KIDNAPING SLUGS GUARD AND RUNS

AURORA, Ill., Feb. 7.—(AP)—Jess Doyle, under indictment in connection with the Bremer kidnaping, slugged a federal department of justice agent last night and escaped by leaping through a window of a hotel.

Doyle was in the custody of two federal agents who were bringing him to Chicago by airplane. The pilot, unable to locate the municipal airport, made a forced landing on the farm of E. L. Matlock of Yorkville, near Aurora and about 50 miles southwest of Chicago.

With their prisoner handcuffed, the agents drove to the Hotel Nading, Yorkville, where one of the agents placed a call for the department of justice office at Chicago.

While his companion was phoning, the second agent led Doyle to the hotel bar and removed the handcuffs.

"The officer ordered two beers," Grace Larrison, a waitress who witnessed the escape, said. "The prisoner slipped his beer slowly and seemed to be watching his guard's movement. Suddenly, just as the federal officer raised his glass, the prisoner struck him on the chin and the officer fell to the floor."

"Like a flash the prisoner turned around and leaped through the closed window into a side yard. I saw him run out the gate and across the street where he jumped into an automobile and drove away while the agent fired at him through the window."

The identity of the prisoner was guarded by the Chicago office of the division of investigation, but the police of Northern Illinois were asked today to hunt for Doyle in a car bearing the same license plates as one in which Doyle escaped.

RAY HAMILTON IS READY SURRENDER ACCORDING BROTHER

NOTORIOUS FUGITIVE WILLING TO ACCEPT FEDERAL PENALTY ESCAPE DEATH

DALLAS, Feb. 6.—(P)—Raymond Hamilton, fugitive bank robber and gunman, today offered to surrender to federal authorities and accept a long term in Alcatraz Island prison, provided they would save him from death in the electric chair for murder. The offer was made through his brother, Floyd, arrested yesterday in Shreveport, United States District Attorney Clyde Eastus promptly declined to accept it.

The Hamilton brothers barely escaped death in a police trap at a Dallas apartment Monday night when officers fired nearly 200 shots at them. Raymond, probably wounded, still is at large but officers have closed most of his means of escape from the city. He is exerting every means to track him down.

Raymond Hamilton, twice successful in fleeing from Texas prisons, is under federal sentence for the murder of Major Crowder, a guard at Eastham prison farm, in an escape more than a year ago when Clyde Barrow aided Hamilton to flee.

Floyd Hamilton, brought back to Dallas this morning from Shreveport, was subjected to a lengthy questioning by Eastus and federal agents.

To try Floyd, Eastus announced that the government would proceed, on Feb. 22, to try Floyd Hamilton and some 20 others on charges of harboring Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Taylor, desperate couple shot to death by officers in Louisiana.

The gas company service truck stolen at the time the Hamiltons escaped the police trap here Monday night, was found in the brush south of Dallas, near the town of Rylie. It had blood stains on the seat and officers believed Raymond Hamilton was wounded probably badly.

The fact that his mother and step-father, along with many close friends, are in jail on charges of harboring fugitives, increased Ray's difficulties in obtaining a hiding place, officers pointed out.

Some officers even predicted that Raymond might be found dead of his wounds in a few days.

At the office of the First National Bank at Carthage, robbed Monday of nearly $1,000, were on their way to Dallas to view Floyd Hamilton, suspected participant in the holdup, Raymond was expected of having a hand in the crime.

Search Is Renewed For Ray Hamilton As Brother Caught

DALLAS, Feb. 6.—(P)—Raymond Hamilton, the Southwest's most-wanted hoodlum, was sought with renewed energy today by officers who drew encouragement from the capture of his brother and alleged partner, and from indications that Raymond would be seriously wounded in his escape from a trap here.

Floyd Hamilton, elder brother of the bank robbery specialist, was brought here from Shreveport, where he was captured yesterday by officers who recognized him as they made a routine inspection of the passengers aboard a bus.

He was wounded in the arm, but denied the wound was raised by a bullet and said he was not the man with Raymond when the latter broke out of a police trap in a hall of bullets Monday night.

He also denied he participated with his brother in a bank robbery at Carthage, Texas, a few hours before the encounter here. He put up no fight and was not armed, but officers reported they found more than $400 on him.

Floyd Hamilton admitted he had been in touch with Raymond recently and said his brother gave him the money.

Gas Truck Recovered

Hopes for the early capture of Raymond Hamilton were raised by the discovery of blood stains in the gas service truck which he stole for his getaway from the officers' ambush.

Blood traces at shoulder height in the drivers' seat led to the Captain J. W. Fritz to express opinion he had been hard hit. Other stains, on the cushion and floor boards were interpreted as meaning he had been struck a serious time in the region of the knee.

The truck, as part of its regular equipment, carried soap, brushes, and water. Officers who inspected the machine when it was found hidden in a clump of trees ten miles from here last night said it was obvious the fleeing gangster had attempted to wash off the blood to prevent them from learning he had been hit.

Reported Seen in Dallas

A report that Raymond had been seen in downtown Dallas shortly before 2 a. m. sent police scurrying over the city in a renewed hunt.

The report was based on a meeting between two automobiles, with witnesses saying a woman got out of one car, handed a rifle to a young man and said, "Now, for God's sake be careful, Ray."

OVER EIGHT MILLION CATTLE PURCHASED IN EMERGENCY PROGRAM

CULLING OF CATTLE HERDS AIDS INDUSTRY; BOOKS CLOSED TODAY

By STEPHEN J. McDONOUGH Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—(P)—The federal government today closed its books on emergency purchases of cattle in drought areas with 1,856,962 animals bought for a total of $108,355,222 or an average price of $13.50 per head.

This "culling" of cattle herds, AAA officials said, has put the industry in one of the most favorable positions of its history, with most of the poorer animals removed and surplus of a year ago brought down to an approximate normal level of 57,000,000 head.

However, they added, the beef cattleman is still a long way from becoming prosperous, despite the record top price of $13.65 per hundredweight, quoted last week at dreadweight. This was the peak price for smooth, long-fed cattle, very few of which are available for present marketing, according to H. J. Gramlich, special feed adviser to Administrator Chester C. Davis.

The cattle remaining on farms, officials said, are generally of a higher quality than ever before and farmers who were not forced to cut into foundation herds will be in position to profit later from higher prices, as feed grains become available in larger quantities.

Many Cattle Thin.

However, Gramlich pointed out, many of the cattle left are thin and will require heavy feeding for several months before they are ready for market at profitable prices.

He and Col. Phillip G. Murphy, chief of the commodities purchase section of the AAA, said cattlemen will have to receive higher prices for some time in order to recoup losses of the past few years.

Government purchases of drought-stricken cattle and emergency marketings brought the farm inventory down from 67,000,000 level of Jan. 1, 1934, to approximately 57,000,000 on Jan. 1, 1935, or about the same point as in 1900, 1912, and 1928, the low years of the normal production cycle.

The 1,856,962 head bought formed about 29 per cent of the total inventory of the 755,158 farms from which purchases were made, most of which lie in the states west of the Mississippi river.

Million and Half Condemned.

Of the total purchases, 1,424,879 head were condemned as unfit for human food and destroyed on the farms. The remainder were turned over to the federal relief administration for processing into food for families on relief rolls.

Intensity of the drought in the most severely affected states was indicated in the percentage of total farm inventories sold. In North Dakota, and Montana 51 per cent of all cattle were bought, in South Dakota, 45 per cent, and in Oklahoma 41 per cent.

Texas sold the largest total 1,926,393; North Dakota disposed of 977,120, and South Dakota 912,846.

A bright spot in the future of the cattle industry was indicated today when some AAA officials declared that the war survey showed an improvement in the feed situation. Many farmers who had excess feed which they were holding for higher prices are growing panicky, it was said, and offerings supplies considerably larger quantities than they had indicated as possessing.

A summary of the purchases, by states, includes:

States—	Pur.	Cond.
Arkansas	112,294	25,234
Kansas	521,056	14,210
Louisiana	40,832	21,795

CONSERVATIVES CREDITED WITH WINNING SHOW-DOWN RECENTLY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—(P)—Jerome Frank, AAA general counsel and three of his aides, all known as "left wingers," resigned today as a result of a general reorganization of the Farm Administration intended to remove internal strife.

The shake-up was ordered yesterday by Chester C. Davis, AAA administrator, with the approval of Secretary Wallace, and opened the way for the resignation of Davis himself, probably after congress adjourns.

President Roosevelt said at his press conference today he knew nothing of the re-organization move and described it as a purely internal affair.

Seth Thomas, conservative department of agriculture solicitor, replaced Frank this morning at a meeting of staff advisors called by Davis. Frank is a former Chicago attorney and a friend of Prof. Felix Frankfurter of Harvard.

Also missing from the meeting were three of Frank's assistants, Francis M. Shea, Lee Pressman, and Victor W. Rotnem, who submitted their resignations, and Al Hiss, now on leave as counsel for the senate munitions committee, who will not return to the farm administration.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—(P)—A conflict between "right" and "left" camps of the AAA resulted today in the virtual ouster of Jerome Frank, known as an "original brain trust," and four other officials.

The shakeup was described as a victory for the more conservative school represented by farm administrator, Chester Davis.

An official said that Frank, former Chicago attorney and a friend of Prof. Felix Frankfurter of Harvard was expected to resign today as counsel to the agriculture adjustment administration.

Besides Frank, the men leaving their posts include three lawyers under him, Lee Pressman, Francis Shea and Victor Rotnem, and Gardiner Jackson of the consumers' council.

The men who were informed that resignations were in order said the action taken by Secretary Wallace at the instance of Davis was a complete surprise.

Word of the requested resignations came after an official announcement which told simply of a reorganization. Frank and the others were not mentioned. The announcement said the legal division of AAA would be consolidated with the office of the department solicitor, Seth Thomas.

One contention of the school of which Frank is a representative has been that some of the government programs for controlling crops and regulating marketing have favored large land owners and handlers of farm products.

The viewpoint in the Davis camp has been that many of the critics have no practical knowledge of farming and that they have hampered the drive toward prosperity.

Corsicana Student To Be Eligible For Texas U. Cage Team

AUSTIN, Feb. 7.—(P)—Athletic council officials at the University of Texas today awaited official grades from mid-term examinations to determine if two members of the varsity basketball team were ineligible.

The doubtful cases were Henry Clifton, guard, and De Moy Paulk, center.

Morris Sands of Corsicana, ineligible the first semester, will be eligible to play, it was understood. Sands, who is six feet, two inches tall, will fill a place at center.

Two members of the football squad, Hugh Wolfe of Stephenville, and Louis Olivier of Port Arthur, also may be lost through ineligibility.

ARMY MAJOR DIES INJURIES RECEIVED NIGHT CLUB FIGHT

ANOTHER MEMBER PARTY SAYS OFFICER THROWN DOWN STAIRS

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 5.—(P)—An army major was fatally injured and two other officers slightly hurt in a night club fight that climaxed a gay party in celebration of their regiment's birthday here early today.

The dead man was Maj. Charles A. Ross, battalion commander of the 30th infantry, stationed in the Pacific. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Central Emergency hospital after either falling or being thrown down a long flight of steps at the entrance to the night club.

Maj. William F. Lee, one of his companions, suffered a bruised left eye, and Lieut. Winfred Skelton a cut lip in the brief scuffle that preceded the tragedy.

Three Attendants Held.

Held in connection with the death of Major Ross are Glen Gaviotti, well known in San Francisco night life circles, and two of his aides, Joe Vanness and Sam Erlich. The three were booked on manslaughter charges after two hours' questioning by police.

All denied being involved in the fight. They were later released on $2,500 bail each.

Major Ross and five companions—Major Lee and C. M. Easley; Captains Thomas N. Stark and Erle M. Miner, and Lieutenant Skelton—arrived at the Club Cairo shortly after 1 a. m., witnesses said, and a quarrel with club attendants began at the door.

"I checked my hat and coat," said Major Easley, "and on returning saw the other officers quarrelling with Gaviotti, Vanness and Erlich. I tried to calm the club attendants and told them not to take the major seriously about anything as he was only kidding. But they insisted on throwing him out."

A scuffle ensued. Major Easley said Major Ross was "man-handled to the head of the stairs and thrown down." The major told police that the club employs further manhandled Major Ross outside the building by kicking him.

Major Ross was a native of Michigan and had been in the army since 1918. For several years he was a member of the general staff school at Washington, D. C. He leaves a widow and two daughters, one of who is married and lives in Washington, D. C.

MORE THAN FIVE THOUSAND COUNTY POLL TAXES PAID

FULL VOTING STRENGTH OF COUNTY EXPECTED TO BE APPROXIMATELY 7,000

There will be between 5,400 and 5,500 poll tax receipts issued in Navarro county when all of the applications and orders in the mail have been worked, according to information received Thursday morning from the office of R. L. (Bob) Harris, assessor and collector of taxes for Navarro county. There had been 5,393 poll taxes issued Thursday morning and coupled with the hundreds of persons qualified to vote on exemptions, the voting strength of the county will be considerably in excess of 7,000. This is a considerable increase over 1933, the last off-political year figure.

There have been 1,206 poll taxes issued in the city of Corsicana, J. M. Pugh, city assessor and collector, received Thursday morning. There will be a hotly-contested municipal election held in April when a mayor, assessor and collector of taxes, city attorney and commissioners will be selected for the next two years.

There had been only 42 license plates for automobiles for 1935 issued at the county assessor and collector's office Thursday morning.

ENGINEERS BUSY MAPPING PROJECTS SIX-COUNTY AREA

Three Corsicana engineers have been quite busy in recent days over a project which is a part of the co-operative program between city, state and federal officials in an attempt to secure an inventory of needed projects by February 11.

Corsicana was designated as one of the key units in the survey, and as a result A. E. Mitchell, secretary of the Corsicana Chamber of Commerce, and also an engineer; W. W. McClendon, city engineer; and O. L. Hazelwood, project engineer, have been engaged for the greater part of this week in meeting with county and various city units, talking over plans and determining the probable building activities which might be sought under the revised PWA operating plans.

The six counties included in this area are Navarro, Ellis, Anderson, Henderson, Freestone, and Limestone counties. Meetings have been held in several of the counties, and Messrs. McClendon and Hazelwood were in Palestine Thursday morning to meet representatives of that county.

OIL MEN

Leaders generally will bill should be passed first with the state compact plan, backed by Governor E. W. Marland of Oklahoma, to follow. The resolution said "hot oil would be eliminated by the simple method of eliminating it from commerce."

W. Fred Weeks of Tyler, attorney for the Texas Petroleum Council and framer of the resolution, warned "if the courts render an adverse decision regarding control of railroad shipments by the state and if the Connally bill were not enacted within a week, the entire East Texas field would be opened."

A resolution presented by Carl Estes of Longview, urging immediate passage of the Connally bill, was telegraphed to President Roosevelt and Congressman Sam Rayburn of Texas.

Reference to Secretary Ickes as being desirous of establishing himself as "dictator of the oil industry in the event it is taken over by the federal government," was stricken out after a lively discussion over the resolution sent to Washington by telegraph.

"Ickes will stick his foot in, and then he'll have both legs in the oil industry," Estes said.

A quiet suggestion from Nathan Adams, Dallas banker, "not to incur the ill will of Mr. Ickes," was generally agreed to, and the reference to Ickes deleted.

The committee named to make the Washington trip included Adams, Weeks, Sade W. Kanger of Henderson; Paul Meaders of San Antonio; George A. Hill, Jr., of Houston; Jackie S. Breckenridge; John Kilgore of Wichita Falls; Freeman W. Burford of Dallas; E. L. Smith of Mexico; Joe R. Pearson of Corsicana; Cecil Storey of Longview; Fred Horton of Greenville; S. Ross of Kilgore; W. E. Hamilton of Wichita Falls and Mary Wilson of Overton.

Consider Oil Bill.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—(P)—The house interstate commerce committee today formally began consideration of oil legislation, including a senate bill drawn to replace section 9c of the national recovery act but could not agree and decided to continue deliberations tomorrow.

Chairman Rayburn (D-Tex) said after the committee met in executive session that members were undecided on the best method of dealing with the crude oil situation and, in answer to a question, said he did not know whether the senate bill would be reported out.

Connally (D-Tex) author of 9c as well as of the new senate measure, was called before the committee but was not heard officially and will return for tomorrow's session.

DOPING RING

Asked if the investigation involved any state employees, Gov. Allred replied:

"It might be some former state employees involved. I hope none of those working for the state now will be implicated."

Information on Doped Horses.

The governor said the inquiry disclosed that information on "doped" horses has been wired to all parts of Texas and outside the state.

He declined to state the nature of the "doping" but said that had been practiced until more information has been obtained. The governor indicated that every effort would be made to "get to the bottom of this thing."

It was learned from a private source that the changes were made in the chemists' reports on saliva tests after they had left the office of the livestock sanitary commission in Fort Worth and before they reached the track veterinarian at Alamo Downs.

The San Antonio track veterinarian, becoming suspicious when all his tests came back marked "negative" is reported to have submitted specimens personally to a chemist in San Antonio which disclosed a positive reaction showing use of dope or narcotics. Suspension of the eight trainers was ordered immediately by track officials.

Government Investigating.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—(P)—Harry J. Anslinger, commissioner of narcotics, said today the government is making an investigation of all cases of race horse doping with the view of federal prosecution.

"We have had a number of convictions in case involving the stimulation of race horses brought about by dope injections," Anslinger said.

The commissioner said the federal requirement of a "saliva test" by competent veterinarians had been of invaluable aid in bringing about convictions.

RELIEF BILL

The committee, were due back in the city today before it took a final vote. Leaders believed two of these, Tydings, Maryland, and McKellar, Tennessee, would support the administration. They are returning from a Philippine mission.

Senator Overton of Louisiana, who has been ill in Baltimore, was not counted for the bill as it stands, but administration leaders did not know definitely how he would vote.

So crucial was the situation considered that leaders called the whole senate into session for the purpose of swearing McKellar, who had not yet taken the oath. Previously they had planned to give the senate a day off because there is no legislation to consider.

Whatever the committee might do, democratic leaders expressed the belief that the senate as a whole would, in the last analysis, not stand for cutting the Roosevelt bill to pieces.

At the other side of the capital, Speaker Eynns predicted that the house would not agree to cut the bill down to $2,880,000,000 even if the senate should do so.

"It would destroy the entire purpose behind the program of doing away with the debt and replacing it with jobs," he declared.

He put a motion to adjourn to a voice vote but repeal supporters demanded a record vote.

Allred and Ferguson Present.

Governor James V. Allred, on whose demand advocacy of repeal was written into the state democratic platform, and former Gov. James E. Ferguson, during the last administration of whose wife Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, the wagering law was enacted, were present.

Speakers in support of repeal included C. R. Pennington, secretary of the Retail Merchants' association of Abilene, K. H. Parker of Dallas, statistician, B. P. Panas of Houston and the Rev. W. R. White, president of the Ministers Alliance of Fort Worth.

Former Representative T. H. McGregory of Austin, known as the "father" of pari-mutuel wagering in Texas, presented the principal case for the opponents. Elbert Hooper, former assistant attorney general, also protested repeal.

McGregory argued that repeal would ruin citizens who have invested $50,000,000 in racing plants, deprive the state of a million dollars annually in revenue, and throw thousands of persons out of employment.

School Fund Aid.

McGregory pointed to the $132,642 received by the school fund from race receipts, saying "what other industry in its first year contributed this much to the school children?"

He cited the purchase by the department of agriculture of jacks and stallions to improve breeding of Texas farm animals as performed under "the only law ever passed that provided immediate benefit to the farmer." The number of breeders has increased from 13 to 216 since race betting was legalized, he asserted.

Pennington declared "every dollar wagered at the race track was taken from the wives and children of this state."

Panas said the Epsom Downs track at Houston was financed by New York racketeers.

Farker asserted track owners were taking out of circulation in a trade territory "more than 27 per cent of the money actually bet."

The Rev. White, asserting bookies had flourished a hundred fold under the stimulus of race track betting, appealed for repeal "in behalf of the gullible public and for those who have been caught in this frenzy and come to me with their pitiful stories."

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Feb. 7.—(P)—A transcontinental journey of death came to light here today when Capt. Joseph Blake of the state highway patrol announced he had obtained a confession from Clarence Frechette, 25, Kalamazoo, Mich., that he shot and killed Robert Brown, his employer, whose body was found in a motor car Frechette was driving.

Captain Blake, head of the highway patrol station on the Nevada-California border, where Frechette was arrested last night, said the suspected killer confessed that he killed Brown on January 29, and that he had been in prison after serving the minimum of a six to 10-year sentence.

Frechette became known as "the flying man" seven years ago when he was convicted of slugging his flying instructor, Harry W. Anderson, with a hammer during a flight from Pontiac, Mich.

Blake said Frechette said he struck Anderson because Anderson had frozen onto the controls. Testimony at his trial said Frechette went through Anderson's and the plane's pockets for valuables before bringing the plane down on its side.

Frechette was sentenced to prison after serving the minimum of a six to 10-year sentence.

State Employer's Car.

Frechette was quoted by the officer as saying he lived at 325 Old Orchard St., Kalamazoo, and that the motor car he was driving belonged to Brown, 25-year-old Kalamazoo trucking operator. The capture of Frechette came dramatically shortly before midnight, Captain Blake and two patrolmen acting on information relayed to them by Sacramento authorities.

Early last night Detective Sergeant Ralph Towers of Sacramento received a telegram from Sheriff Charles Struble of Kalamazoo asking him to start a search for Frechette. The sheriff said he suspected the man of killing Brown and stealing the victim's automobile.

The sheriff related that a short time before Brown's father, Roy, had received a telegram signed

Robert" in which the sender asked the $50,000 to be taken to him in care of a Sacramento hotel. The eastern officer suspected that Frechette was using Brown's name.

Stopped at Quarantine.

Towers quickly notified Captain Blake and a watch was set up at the border station, where routine examinations of motorists entering the state are made for quarantine purposes.

About 11:15 p. m., a small sedan (1934 Pontiac) carrying a Michigan license, K-62448, swung into the station. Officer Frank Carter, who was on duty, noticed that it was Frechette, another man later identified as John Malcolm Rivas of Salt Lake City, a woman who gave the name of Mrs. Victor Messenger, Alameda, Calif., and her small daughter.

Captain Blake said Frechette later told him that Rivas, the woman and girl had joined him at Salt Lake City while hitchhiking west and he did not believe they were connected with the case, although they were held with Frechette pending further investigation.

At first the man identified himself as Brown, Captain Blake said, and later denied he had anything to do with the killing. With the three officers firing questions at him, Frechette broke down and confessed, Blake said.

Finally Breaks Down.

In a voice that broke at times, Frechette related, Captain Blake declared, that he had found Brown with his "girl" January 29. The shooting followed.

Frightened by his act, Frechette was quoted as saying he took the car and drove it to the body into the trunk and fled westward, intending to go to San Francisco, "ditch the automobile with the body in it" and take a boat to China.

Brown was shot twice through the head. The body was in a fair state of preservation, which officers attributed to the cold weather.

As he finished his story Frechette said he was "glad it was all over."

Captain Blake said the fugitive admitted he was on parole in Michigan for attempted murder at the time he committed the crime.

Card of Thanks.

As we emerge from the awful tragedy that has taken from us our dear mother, we want to thank each and every one for every act of service and kindness rendered. We thank the ladies who prepared and served the nice meals, trying as best they could to make our burdens lighter; speaking words of cheer to make the world look brighter. To those who contributed to the beautiful floral offering, may God cause your pathway to be strewn with such sweet flowers. To those who spoke such nice words of praise and consolation concerning the life of our dear mother, may God bless their lives abundantly and may her life ever be a guiding star to those who follow her, and when misfortune comes your way we stand willing and ready to do our part and pray that God will surround each and every one with such friends as he has us.

NEW TREATMENT FOR COLDS:

A VOLATILE RUB THAT ACTUALLY REACHES BRONCHIAL TUBES

A Genuine Discovery

Pine Balm offers you entirely new relief for colds.

It is not a mere surface rub for temporary surface warmth.

It is not an ointment that merely clears your head for a few brief moments.

Pine Balm is a penetrant that reaches the air passages even to the bronchial tubes themselves. It relieves the congestion, relieves soreness, too. For throat irritation you just swallow a lump of this remarkable preparation; no sprays or gargles can compare with this newly discovered treatment.

With this rub, you can relieve a cold without taking one drop of internal medicine.

The public is not asked to try an untried product, or believe any unsupported claims. Physicians have tested the efficacy of this new formula on a great many men, women and children, having various types of colds.

IT COSTS ONLY 25 CENTS!

Get this new treatment, and be prepared. It is only a quarter a jar. Druggists who, were all out of Pine Balm following the first announcement, have plenty now. Just ask for Dr. Caldwell Pine Balm in the "pine cone" jar, and use according to simple directions that come with it.

Pine Balm is a real discovery.

HOME MANICURING

GROOMING
The woman who must be well groomed without much to invest in it, will find Miss Forbes' talk today of special interest to her.

While an occasional professional manicure may be needed from time to time, it is possible to keep the finger-tips well cared for, even though a n i n e - tenths of the time the work must be done in odd moments at home. Frequent, t h i s method is a time saver, unless a manicure is included with work being done, it will take a great deal of time from a busy woman's day. One reason why the home work is so easily done is the fact that there are so many little helps, such as cuticle removers, polishes, and emollients, all harmless to the nails and skin, and most of them inexpensive, if economy must be considered.

A minute or two may be needed every few days to push back the intruding skin from the base of the nail, or to smooth off the edge of a roughened nail, but there will always be a reason for a complete manicure once every week, even though it must be done by oneself at home.

If you have previously used an enamel, the first thing to do is to remove all of it with your lotion for this purpose. Follow this with the cuticle softener, going all around the base of the nail, or wherever the skin has tightened and prevented perfect circulation. An orange-wood stick with a wet bit of cotton wrapped around the point makes this job a simple matter, and the blunt end of the stick may be used later to remove all the softened skin, without the need of scissors. Incidentally, the oily removers, that are much like a pomade, are preferable to the lotions. Emery boards are better for shaping the nails than files, which often leave the edges roughened. Lemon juice or a commercial bleach will remove stains, and the nails are ready for either one of the simple polishes or an enamel, just as one prefers.

Y. R.—Anything at all that increases the circulation will be helpful in riding your skin of the white-heads and blackheads. The former show there is sluggishness in the action of the skin, and there is even more need for stimulation, when treating the skin for this condition, than for ridding it of the blackheads. Hot and cold applications help. Massage does much, because it improves the circulation. The penetrating effect of a fine oil is excellent, too, as that softens the hardened impacts in the pores. The very worst thing to do is to clear the pores by forcing out the impacts. Nothing ever is gained, really, as the pores are very much distended after that sort of clearing, and they start at once to fill up again. Often there are bruises following such rough handling of the tissues, and if the bruise has any depth, it takes months before the broken-down tissues from it are carried off and new tissue built up again. The stains left in the skin from these bruises are far more disfiguring than the white-heads or blackheads. Cleansing and shrinking should go on together, which means months of care before the skin is fully cleared and has also resumed its former texture. Sweet almond oil is helpful when there are white-heads to be treated, as it is very penetrating. Any cream or oil will do to dissolve soil of the blackheads. Hot water and soap will cleanse, then rinses and the stimulating effect of a very cold douche or an ice rub will complete the treatment for that one time. Massage for either trouble will build up the general tone of the facial muscles, and hasten the clearing of the clogged pores.

PETER THE BLUNDERER IS MADE PETER THE PREACHER *

High Drama in the Life of the Fisherman Apostle—His New-Found Courage Makes Him the Lion's Voice of Christianity's Most Spectacular Experience—The Wonder of Pentecost.

By WILLIAM T. ELLIS

No other "success" story was ever so spectacular as that of Fisherman Peter, whose biography is a three-months' theme of the Sunday schools. For sheer drama of rise from lowliness to continuing power and pre-eminence, we may match him with the Alexanders and Napoleons of secular history. Grown to manhood in the limited lot of a Galilean fisherman, he became a follower of the Nazarene. New qualities broke out in him, often disastrously, because he was a prize blunderer. His career seemed to go to smash in a crisis, when he denied his Lord with curses, in the hour when that Hero most needed his friends. His new career seemingly ended. Peter went back to his boat and nets on the Lake of Galilee. There Jesus met him, and restored him to his old mission, with new power and possibility.

Now we find this same Peter the central human figure in the long history of Christendom. He is a changed man. The fear-ridden peasant has become a preacher and a leader of matchless power. With splendid courage, he dares to arraign as murderers the men who stand before him. And he outclasses the theologians of his day in the presentation of the real significance of the Hebrew Scriptures. Peter's Pentecost stands on one of the world's highest pinnacles of power.

Men Who Make News. Peter was always making news. In the Gospel record it is his words, his acts, that speak above the commonplaceness of his companions. Not all that he said and did was wise; but it was always interesting. Twice he flung himself into the sea to go to his Master. He was first to perceive and proclaim the full significance of the character and mission of Jesus. He made a scene at the Last Supper. He drew a sword in the Garden to defend his Master. His black denial and display of the Crucifixion tragedy. His oration to his place in the steeple was the outstanding act of the appearance of Christ seven fisherman and disciples. Drama seemed to surround him as an atmosphere.

Now, in this Pentecost experience he holds the center of the age, in peerless leadership. Gone is the old wavering. This is no longer Simon, the mere son of his father; this is Peter, the Rock.

A Sermon After Silence. Fifty days after the Passover the little group of disciples of Jesus had kept quiet and secluded. After His ascension, the eleven disciples apparently foregathered daily in the upper room of sacred memory. They had been instructed by the Master to tarry for the fulfillment of His promise.

On the Harvest Festival, which is called Pentecost, because it is the fiftieth day, the wonder fell—the wonder that became the birthday of the Christian church and the mountain-peak experience to which Christians have ever since reverently looked back.

When Pentecost came, it was Peter who stood up as preacher, to interpret the significance of it all. The sermon of this untutored fisherman was one that would satisfy the most exacting professor of homiletics. It was Scripture-based and Scripture-filled. It was marked by rare courage, and by direct application to the hearers. It exalted Jesus as the Messiah, and proved His resurrection. It vented in repentance and baptism of three thousand persons.

One of History's High Spots. So inadequate is any uninspired pen to deal with Pentecost, and so important is it that every intelligent person should know the actual story that I here quote the record, from the Weymouth Translation:

"At length, on the day of the Harvest Festival, they had all met in one place; when suddenly there came from the sky a sound as of a strong rushing blast of wind. This filled the whole house where they were sitting; and they saw tongues of what looked like fire distributing themselves over the assembly, and on the head of each person a tongue alighted. They were all filled with the Holy Spirit, and began to speak in foreign languages according as the Spirit gave them words to utter.

"Now there were Jews residing in Jerusalem, devout men from every part of the world. So when this noise was heard, they came crowding together, and were amazed because every one heard his own language spoken. They were beside themselves with wonder, and exclaimed: 'Are not all these speakers Galileans? How then does each of us hear his own native language spoken by them?'"

"They were all astounded and bewildered, and asked one another: 'What can this mean?'"

"But others, scornfully jeering, said: 'They are brimful of sweet wine.'"

"Peter, however, together with the Eleven, stood up and addressed them in a loud voice. 'Men of Judea, and all you inhabitants of Jerusalem,' he said, 'be in no uncertainty about this matter but pay attention to what I say. For this is not intoxication, as you suppose, it being only the third hour of the day. But that which was predicted through the Prophet Joel has happened:

"And it shall come to pass in the last days, God will pour out My Spirit upon all mankind; and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, and your young men shall see visions, and your old men shall have dreams; and even upon My bondservants, both men and women, at that time, I will pour out My Spirit, and they shall prophesy."

"Listen, Israelites, to what I say. Jesus, the Nazarene, a man accredited to you from God by miracles and marvels and signs which God did among you through Him, as you yourselves know. Him delivered up through God's settled purpose and foreknowledge—you by the hands of Gentiles have nailed to a cross and have put to death. But God has raised Him to life, having terminated the throes of death for in fact it was not possible for Him to be held fast by death. . . . Therefore let the whole House of Israel know beyond all doubt that God has made Him both Lord and Christ—this Jesus whom you crucified.

"Stung to the heart by these words, they said to Peter, and the rest of the Apostles, 'Brethren, what are we to do?'"

"Repent," replied Peter, 'and be baptized, every one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ, with a view to the remission of your sins, and you shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit. For to you belongs the promise, and to all who are far off, whoever the Lord shall call.'

Internal Revenue Collections Rise During Past Year

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Collections of internal revenue rose 43 1-2 per cent during 1934 to total $2,994,172,572 the treasury announced today in a comparative statement by districts and states. Collections for the previous year were $2,080,947,279.

All general classes showed increases. The list was led by agricultural adjustment taxes, with an upturn of 257 per cent. However, this levy was not in effect for all of 1933.

Corporation income tax returns jumped 36 per cent with individual incomes returning an increase of 20 per cent. Miscellaneous internal income was up 28 per cent. New York state was still the chief revenue producer, returning $586,032,129. Illinois squeezed out North Carolina for the number two position, because of processing taxes on meat packing plants. North Carolina, with heavy tobacco taxes paid $278,750,764 against $291,078,144 for Illinois.

Our God may call.
"And with many more appeals he solemnly warned and entreated them, saying, 'Escape from this crooked generation.'"

"Those, therefore, who joyfully welcomed his Message were added; and on that one day about three thousand persons were added to them; and they were constant in listening to the teaching of the Apostles and in their attendance at the Communion, that is, the Breaking of the Bread, and at prayer."

Ellis County Girls Win Mildred Tourney During Past Weekend

Byrd high school of Ellis county won the annual Mildred Girls' Invitation basketball tournament at the Mildred gymnasium Monday night by upsetting the dope and hanging a 34-15 shiner on the Navarro girls, winners of the Corsicana Y girls invitational affair. Navarro, by winning their semi-final game, conched the second place trophy, and Bryan took third with a 23-15 win over Roane in the consolation game Monday night.

Byrd defeated Roane 18-8 in the first semi-final game Monday afternoon, to advance to the final contest, and Navarro was accorded that distinction by eliminating Bryan 23-15, which, incidentally, was the score by which Bryan won the consolation.

Other teams in the contest were Mildred, Rural Shade, Powell, Dawson, Union High, Rice, Currie, Wortham, Wilson, Pursley, Emhouse and India.

SAVINGS AND LOANS ASSOCIATIONS ARE TOLD TO ADVERTISE

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING ADVISED AS BEST WAY TO INFORM THE PUBLIC

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Newspaper advertising was recommended today to federal savings and loan associations as the best means of laying their plans before the public.

The Home Loan Bank board's recommendation was accompanied by a series of advertisements prepared by expert advertising writers to aid associations which are not equipped to write and prepare advertisements.

The advertisements were paid for out of a sum of $650,000 authorized in the amended home loan act for "promoting, organizing and developing" savings and loan associations.

The series of advertisements prepared by the board consists of 26 different advertisements adapted for one and two column space.

"The advertisements have been approved by experienced savings and loan men," said a letter written to all associations by George Dock, Jr., public relations adviser for the board. "In writing them, we have also had the generous co-operation of two leading advertising agency executives. The advertisements are designed to stimulate the sale of shares, at-

PROMINENT TEXAN, NAT M. WASHER, IS DEAD SAN ANTONIO

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Nat M. Washer, 73, kindly friend to underprivileged youth, former president of the state board of education and a Texas business leader, died here last night.

The civic leader, for decades a prominent figure in civic, Masonic and business circles, succumbed to a lingering illness at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Paulene W. Goldsmith.

Washer had been head of the state board of education since its appointment by Governor Dan Moody and was being considered for reappointment to the post by Governor James V. Alford.

He was the oldest living past grand master of the Grand Lodge of Texas, Masons, at the time of death. He was a thirty-third degree Mason and a member of the Alzar Shrine.

With his brother, Jacob, Washer formed the Washer Brothers store in Fort Worth and 1898 came here to establish another store. He sold the local store in 1925. He was president of the war camp community service during the world war.

Funeral services have not been completed.

tract prospective borrowers and to create better public understanding of the associations as a business asset to the community, as provided in section 6 of the home owners loan act.

San Angelo Man Named on State University Board

AUSTIN, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Senator Ben G. Oneal, chairman of the senate committee on governor's nominations, today called a meeting for Thursday to consider six appointments by Gov. James V. Alford, including that of Representative Sarah T. Hughes to be a Dallas county district judge.

Oneal said several people had requested a hearing on Mrs. Hughes' nomination, which also was opposed by Senator Claud Westerfield of Dallas.

Other nominations pending were George Dillon Morgan of San Angelo to be a regent of the University of Texas; Mrs. W. E. Spell of Waco, Mrs. H. F. Ring of Houston and Mrs. James Monroe Charlton of San Antonio to be regents of the College of Industrial Arts, and J. E. Josey of Houston to continue as a regent of State Teachers' Colleges.

Asked about a reported offer by Senator Claud Westerfield of Dallas to abide by the wishes of a majority of the Dallas bar association on the appointment of Mrs. Sarah T. Hughes as district judge, Alford pointed out that the constitution said nothing about bar association helping to make appointments.

"I've exercised my constitutional prerogative and the Senator can exercise his on the question of confirmation," Alford said.
